Fourth Body Found

SHERBROOKE, Que. (AP)—Quebec Provincial Police, looking for victims of an underworld purge, Thursday discovered a quicklime-covered body at the side of a secondary road 45 miles north of Sherbrooke.

The discovery brings to four the number of underworld victims unearthed so far by investigators.

The other three victims were found in woods near St. Gilles, 20 miles south of Quebec City.

Claude Wagner, Quebec justice minister, said at a press conference in Montreal Monday that the bodies were those of men slain by racketeers anxious to stop their talking to authorities about such activities as fraudulent bankruptcies and arson.

BIG RING
The murders, he said, were being forced by his department's investigation into a giant arson and fraudulent bankruptcy ring which is said to be one of the biggest ever to operate in Canada and to have international connections.

The Quebec justice department later identified the body as that of Paul Chandonnet, a 38-year-old Sherbrooke shopowner.

The justice minister said Chandonnet played an active part in an arson and false bankruptcy ring and was to have been called as a witness in arson cases which now are before the courts.

SEARCH CONTINUES
Mr. Chandonnet, formerly of Quebec City, was a business associate of Moise Darabauer, a 43-year-old Quebec City businessman who now is before the courts charged with arson, fraud and conspiracy to commit arson and fraud.

The search for bodies continues in various widely-separated parts of Quebec province.

Tighter Laws Planned

OTTAWA (UPI)—Justice Minister Lucien Cardin said Thursday the government is working on legislation to "tighten up" and "fill the holes" in federal bankruptcy laws. (See also Page 3.)

Cardin said a complete re-vamping of the Bankruptcy Act is being carried out, but it could take "as long as a year to complete."

Cardin denied reports the federal government has not been co-operating in the stranger-than-fiction cases in Quebec where police report as many as 12 would-be witnesses in fraudulent bankruptcy cases have been murdered.

There has been "a lot of loose talk," said Cardin.

Someone's Aiming At You, Mr. Bond

MOSCOW (Reuters)—James Bond will soon be appearing in Moscow for the first time as the villain in a Russian spy novel.

Special Agent 007's opponent will be Russian spy-hero Ayvakum Zakhov, the creation of writer Andrei Gulyashki. They will cross swords in Bulgaria in Gulyashki's next novel.

Gulyashki told the newspaper Literary Gazette that the adventure novel should serve as "a guide for socialist ideas and help to educate young people."

Bond is unlikely to be presented as the suave lady-killer of the Ian Fleming novels.

Last week the Soviet Communist newspaper denounced him as a rapist, a sadist, and the successor of Nazi war criminals.

Kremlin Silent Over Moon Shot

Not Soft Enough?

JODRELL BANK, England (AP)—The director of Britain's giant telescope said early today all the evidence pointed to Russia's Luna-7 moon rocket having destroyed itself on hitting the moon.

Sir Bernard Lovell, the director, said radio signals from the moon rocket ceased at 3:08:27 p.m. PDT Thursday.

"It is impossible to do more than guess at what, if anything, has gone wrong. But our assumption was that the Russians intended to make a soft landing of instruments on the lunar surface," he said.

"On that assumption the final stages of firing the retro-rockets were only partially successful," Sir Bernard added.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union maintained silence early today two hours after the unmanned satellite Luna-7 was supposed to land on the moon.

LBJ Goes To Hospital

Talks Deadlocked

Rhodesia Given Warnings By U.S., Bonn

LONDON (AP)—Prime Ministers Harold Wilson and Ian Smith failed Thursday to break the deadlocked British-Rhodesian negotiations over the white-ruled colony's renewed threats to seize independence.

"If tomorrow's meeting is fruitless too," one member of the British cabinet said, "we shall have to decide whether there is any point in going on."

Before the meeting began Thursday, the U.S. and West German governments intervened in the dispute with the aim of heading Smith off his much-threatened course of proclaiming Rhodesia's independence without British consent.

DELIVERS WARNING

The American charge d'affaires in London, Philip H. Kaiser, delivered a warning from the U.S. government telling Smith that any breakaway will not be recognized by Washington.

West Germany's ambassador to Britain, Herbert Blankenhorn, acted in similar fashion.

BACKING BRITAIN

The Americans and West Germans, like other Allied and Commonwealth countries, were reinforcing a solemn British warning to Smith that any grab at independence would be treated as an act of rebellion.

Thus a solid front of leading powers, representing just about all the continents, built up against Smith and the 220,000 white Rhodesians he hopes to lead to statehood. Some 4,000,000 colored Rhodesians are almost without political power.

TOLD OF DIFFICULTIES

As an example of the sort of difficulties the white Rhodesians would encounter after a unilateral declaration of independence, Britain advised Smith within the last two days that Rhodesian passports would have no validity in countries which decline to recognize the statehood he would claim.

If the 48-year-old Rhodesian leader was impressed by this display of opposition he gave no sign of it when he faced Wilson.

De Gaulle Decision: He'll Run

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle, 75, has decided that he will seek re-election Dec. 5, it was reported today in three Paris newspapers.

He was reported not planning to serve out another full seven-year presidential term, however.

But the president was reported planning to wait for another two weeks before making an official announcement in a radio-television address to the nation.

Pin-Up Queen Divorced

LAS VEGAS (UPI)—Betty Grable, the No. 1 box office attraction and pin-up girl of Second World War, has divorced band leader husband Harry James after 11 years of marriage.

The blonde star charged extreme cruelty. The divorce was granted by district Judge John Mowbray.

The still-stunning performer, who testified for less than 10 minutes to get her decree, did not seek alimony.

TORONTO (CP)—Two top members of the federal cabinet came close to resigning over Prime Minister Pearson's delay last fall in disclosing when he first heard of the bribe-offer charge against executive assistant Raymond Denis, according to a forthcoming book.

Richard J. Gwyn of Time magazine's Ottawa bureau writes that Transport Minister Pickersgill and Defence Minister Hellyer considered the move because they felt the prime minister's silence for more than a fortnight was allowing then justice minister Pavlou's reputation to be "torn to shreds."

The book, The Shape of Scandal (Clarke-Irwin) will be published Oct. 15. It deals mainly with the series of scandals.

Stock Fraud

Ontario Charges Windfall Couple

By KEN SMITH

Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—George and Viola MacMillan, the couple with a golden touch in the mining business, were charged Thursday with fraud in connection with last year's frenzy over Windfall Oil and Mines Ltd.—one of their efforts that went sour.

Charges against other persons were indicated by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario, although he did not identify them immediately.

Two fraud charges, each carrying a maximum penalty of 10 years, were laid against each of the MacMillans shortly after the government released the report of a royal commission that was appointed to find out why Windfall shares rose to $5.60 from 56 cents in hectic, rumor-fueled trading in July, 1964, and then collapsed to 80 cents.

Mr. Wishart said the MacMillans were in Nevada, but will return to Canada Friday, Oct. 15, and surrender.

The commission report, prepared by Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal, made no recommendation about the MacMillans but sections of his detailed study came down harshly on the veteran mining couple.

The report also lashed out at John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission who was suspended for a possible conflict of interest over Windfall and later resigned.

It was suggested some members of the brokerage community regard the Toronto Stock Exchange as a gaming club existing for their personal gain and recommended that if the exchange can't keep its own nest clean an outside body be appointed to do so.

It called for a tougher securities commission, with more money, staff and a clear-cut set of regulations, and suggested

Stiffest Round Of Heckling Given John D

John D in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker took his "integrity in government" message before nearly 6,000 people in a jazzy Winnipeg rally Thursday night and ran into the stiffest round of heckling since his campaign began.

As the voices of young people shot down from the galleries, Mr. Diefenbaker told his audience they were facing their last chance to decide the future of Canada. "We must clean up the mess. We will restore honesty to government."

AUDITORIUMS PACKED

The 5,000-seat auditorium was filled for the 70-year-old party leader, and the doorways were packed with standing listeners. An 800-seat adjoining auditorium was nearly filled.

Mr. Diefenbaker alternately toyed with, and ignored, the

Liberals' Foes 'Gloom-Talkers'

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson accused his opponents in the Nov. 8 federal election Thursday night of trying to make Canadians believe that nearly everything has gone wrong in the country.

"I get kind of impatient with them," he said at a Liberal rally here. "People who talk like that are frustrated; they're desperate. There's something wrong with them."

"Too many people are singing Rescue the Perishing. They should be singing Count Your Blessings."

Mr. Pearson did not name Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker as the target for his remarks. He implied that's who he had in mind in saying that the gloom-talkers increased at election time, especially if they are in opposition and trying to get in office.

that what Canada really needs is a national security body to oversee stocks.

Mr. Justice Kelly said in his report that the MacMillans—George was Windfall president and his wife Viola was treasurer—refrained from telling the truth and issued "misleading" statements during the three-week period while the Windfall bubble stretched to its breaking point.

They could have slowed or stalled the wild market activity any time by issuing a frank statement on the Windfall rumors that the company had found copper or zinc on its property near Timmins, Ont., 4½ miles away from the site of a $2,000,000 base-metal strike announced a few months earlier by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., the report said.

Instead, "all their conduct was such as to heighten the element of suspense and promote a belief in the rumors."

The report noted that acceptance of the rumors by the public could mean "substantial benefits" for the MacMillans because of their interest in companies with options on Windfall stock—but it passed over testimony the commission received that the couple turned a $1,400,000 profit through various transactions involving the shares.

In another section it said: "Many people who entered the market after July 7 suffered losses through the complete failure of George and Viola MacMillan, as officers and controlling shareholders of a company, to recognize their obligations to see that trading of the shares of the company on a public exchange took place in the light of the most accurate information available and without any misinformation capable of correction which had a direct bearing on the market price."

The report said the activities of members of the brokerage community in trading Windfall shares for themselves "raises some real doubts as to whether the exchange is maintained for the benefit of the investing public or for the personal convenience and profit of some of the persons intimately associated with it."

The exchange is supposed to be a self-policing outfit, it said, but that goal is too often missed.

Tucked away in one of the indexes of the 177-page report was an additional bit of information about brokers — they made more than $1,000,000 in commissions from trading Windfall shares for their clients.

'Historical Relic' Slam Stings

The political committee stated that it agreed to certain points of the report but "would not wish to subscribe to its contents as a whole."

Bocher began his report by quoting an Austrian periodical which recently published an article by a group of experts who had been studying the position of their countries in relation to various political blocs and which referred to NATO as a "historical relic."

PERMANENT DIVISION

"Unfortunately, there seems to be a considerable amount of truth in that harsh appraisal," Bocher said.

The last year has been marked by a "permanent division" between the North Atlantic alliance allies on the organization's political and strategic concepts, he said.

France herself in the last year had ordered NATO nuclear arms out of the country, had withdrawn the French naval force from the alliance and President de Gaulle has even threatened to quit NATO.

The exchange is supposed to be a self-policing outfit, it said, but that goal is too often missed.

Tucked away in one of the indexes of the 177-page report was an additional bit of information about brokers — they made more than $1,000,000 in commissions from trading Windfall shares for their clients.

Ministers Were Ready to Quit

dals that plagued the Liberal government from last November on, and the Lucien Rivard murder case with its political offshoots looms large.

It purports to give the inside story of cabinet colleagues' anguish while Mr. Favreau was writhing over press and opposition attacks based on the supposition—as Mr. Pearson had led the Commons to believe—that the justice minister did not tell Mr. Pearson until Nov. 22 of bribery allegations against Denis.

The fact was Mr. Favreau had tipped off his chief Sept. 2.

When this was drawn to Mr. Pearson's attention by colleagues, Mr. Gwyn says, the prime minister let one day after another slip by without correcting the erroneous information he had given the House Nov. 22. Finally, he made the correction, but on Dec. 14 and in a letter to Chief Justice Frederic Doherty.

Meanwhile, Mr. Gwyn writes, "powerful figures" had been pressing him to act the record straight. These included Mr. Picherogill, policy secretary

Tom Kent and Gordon Robertson, clerk of the Privy Council. The writer says strong arguments against breaking silence came from advisers such as External Affairs Minister Martin, Finance Minister Gordon and Labor Minister MacEwen.

He says that Mr. Picherogill and Mr. Heley "came close to resigning" because the issue was being brought to the attention of the public.

At Ottawa, Mr. Picherogill said he never considered resigning from the cabinet. He says that Mr. Picherogill and Mr. Heley "came close to resigning" because the issue was being brought to the attention of the public.

Your Good Health

Psychiatric Triumphs Often Leave Scars

By JOSEPH MOLNER

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been seeing a psychiatrist for five years. I never realized that treatment lasts that long.

When I ask the doctor if he thinks I will get well, he says, "I don't know." This is quite discouraging, but I don't want to give up. Perhaps you can enlighten me. I am a grandmother.—MRS. M.S.

Your letter doesn't give me very much to go on, but two or three important points may be of some enlightenment, either to you or to others.

First, such extended psychiatric treatment is not typical. A great deal of good accomplished by psychiatry is the result of rather brief periods of treatment.

Second, much depends on the nature of the emotional illness or disturbance. Just as with physical problems, some emotional ailments clear up rather readily, while others (take diabetes, pernicious anemia or emphysema as examples) never are cured but require continued treatment to keep patients as active and comfortable as possible for the rest of their lives.

CAN OPEN DOORS

Third, a patient's will to recover is important, whether the illness is physical or emotional, although it is usually more important in the latter. A psychiatrist can't just make a patient well. What he CAN do is open doors through which the patient can pass if the desire is there. Without knowing something about your particular problem,

I can't guess whether this last point applies to you. It may not. Your condition may be such that you need constant emotional support from your psychiatrist.

Remember that in psychiatric treatment a complete cure is a will-o-the-wisp as a rule because emotional illness severe enough to require great care is rather bound to leave some scars, just as a physical wound of any severity may be successfully repaired and yet leave permanent scars.

Don't expect a psychiatrist to provide you with a whole new personality, but rather to help you sufficiently so your problem no longer prevents you from functioning in life.

Patients who have had a severe stroke or a terribly shattered leg or hip don't expect to play tennis or be ballet dancers. They may always limp, but it is better to walk with a limp than not to walk at all.

In psychiatry the real triumph often is that the patient, even with an emotional "limp," is able to "walk."

Jakarta Broadcasts Anti-Red Doctrine

JAKARTA (AP)—The army-controlled Jakarta radio kept up a flow of anti-Communist broadcasts Thursday in the face of a live-and-let-live appeal by Indonesian President Sukarno. About 200 Communists were reported under arrest.

Sukarno remained the man in the middle in a conflict arising from the coup attempt last weekend by a leftist battalion commander of the presidential guard, Lt.-Col. Untung.

The chief executive, 64, has welcomed Communist support for the "guided democracy" he has oriented toward Peking policy, while depending on generals of more conservative political beliefs for discipline in the armed services.

The Indonesian Communist party, known here as the PKI, which claims 3,000,000 members, denied in a statement that it was involved in Untung's movement.

WAS AN ARMY MATTER

Though the party newspaper Harian Rakjat came out last Saturday in support of the rebels, the statement called the attempted coup "an internal affair of the army."

First Deputy Premier Subandrio, who is also foreign minister, told reporters at Bogor, 40 miles south of Jakarta, that he believed the party's denial.

In a cabinet meeting at his summer palace in Bogor, Sukarno said he disapproved of the army's campaign against the PKI and declared, "we should not take revenge."

But the cabinet was reported by Radio Jakarta to have condemned the coup attempt and directed the army to act against those responsible.

In subsequent broadcasts the station said six mass organizations, all Moslem, have demanded the arrest and execution of Communist rebels. It said the organizations renewed calls for banning of the PKI and its affiliates, including the strong Sosis Trade Union.

HOLD SPECIAL PRAYERS

All Moslem mosques and Christian churches in the land country of 100,000,000 will hold special prayers for those killed by the rebels, it said.

Among the dead were six army generals and a lieutenant whose mutilated bodies were recovered from a common grave near the Halim air base outside Jakarta. The army charged they were tortured and killed by Communist youths disguised in military uniforms.

Another victim was Ade Erma Nasution, 5, the daughter of Defence Minister Abdul Haris Nasution, who was fatally wounded in a rebel attack on the family home last Friday.

(A broadcast report monitored by Radio Malaysia in Kuala Lumpur said 70 government soldiers were killed in fighting, which has centred largely in Central Java. Sixty were said to be missing.)

Subandrio said Central Java was calm.

Jakarta remained quiet. A dusk-to-dawn curfew, imposed by military authorities last Saturday, still was in force.

Ambulance Squabble

Negro Dies, White Fired

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—An ambulance company with a contract with the city has fired a white driver for refusing to take a dying Negro to a hospital after a traffic accident.

City officials angrily ordered a change in future contracts the city holds with ambulance companies.

City council members, a representative of Mayor Albert Boutwell and police officials said responsibility for Negro Joe Bruce's death rested solely on the "poor judgment" of the ambulance driver.

Edwin G. Emmett, manager of the AAA Ambulance Co., said Owen Collett had been fired because he refused to take Bruce, 33, to a hospital following the accident Wednesday.

City officials said any future contract with ambulance companies in Birmingham would have no mention of race, creed or color. The current contract, signed in 1962, did not require either white or Negro ambulance companies to take injured persons of the opposite race to hospitals.

Under the new policy the first ambulance on the scene of an accident would be required to transport victims to hospital.

Report Before Election

Douglas Calls Probe On MP-Murder Link

ARBHOTSFORD, B.C. (CP)—T. C. Douglas demanded Thursday night the appointment of a Quebec Supreme Court jurist to investigate Quebec's fraudulent bankruptcies and the possible implication of Members of Parliament.

The national leader of the New Democratic Party said the investigation should be confined to the "narrow field" of the alleged complicity of MPs or cabinet ministers and a report made at least a week before the Nov. 8 federal election.

Charges that MPs were implicated in the bankruptcy proceedings in Quebec are "a direct reflection on all Members of Parliament," he said.

"These allegations must be cleared up immediately. The Canadian people have a right to know before Nov. 8 whether there is any basis in fact for these allegations."

ASKED FOR REPORT

He mentioned the Seikind bankruptcy involving Max and Adolph Seikind, whose Montreal firm sold furniture on credit to two Liberal cabinet ministers.

Nielsen Doubts Pearson

MOOSE JAW (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's denial of the existence of a bankruptcy investigation report is "not in accordance with the facts," Erik Nielsen said Thursday.

"I know it exists and I have provided the press with the file numbers," Mr. Nielsen, Progressive Conservative member of the last parliament for the Yukon, said.

MEMORY SLIPPING

Asked to explain the prime minister's denial in Winnipeg, Wednesday, of such a report, Mr. Nielsen said:

"There are two possible reasons. Either the prime minister's memory is slipping again or else he has not been fully and adequately informed by his officials—which is not inconceivable, as we know."

ATTACKS ON RCMP

Mr. Nielsen also said the RCMP should not be subjected to "the disgraceful attacks being made on them" or to the duties displayed during the Lucien Rivard investigation.

The government showed weakness by not defending its police force when the force is under public attack, he said.

DORION-RIVARD

Concerning the Liberal party campaign booklet, the prime minister hopes Canadians have forgotten the Dorion report and the Rivard scandal, Mr. Nielsen charged.

Unity and morality are the two most important issues in the Nov. 8 federal election campaign, despite Liberal party attempts to hide them, Mr. Nielsen said.

'Total Ban' Applauded By Ecumenical Council

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The ecumenical council Thursday gave a rousing ovation to Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani for urging a "total ban on war and all forms of violence."

"Why cannot man reach the point where there will be only one world republic, one common fatherland for all men, a Christian republic where the peace of Christ would reign in the kingdom of Christ." Cardinal Ottaviani, 74, asked the 2,200 bishops in St. Peter's basilica. The cardinal is the controversial head of the Roman Curia, a position which makes him second in church authority directly under Pope Paul VI.

Liberal prelates have often cast the nearly blind son of a Roman baker as a "villain" for his leadership of conservatism during the council's four years.

LONGEST LOUDEST

The applause for Cardinal Ottaviani was the "longest and loudest the council has indulged in—something which the holy office head is not accustomed to hearing," an official council briefing officer said.

Cardinal Ottaviani had told the council that he heartily agreed with "those who desire a more absolute condemnation of nuclear warfare." He then cited the United States of America, the concept of a United Europe and the United States of Brazil as successful examples of confederation.

He called confederation on a world scale the real way to solve the armaments question and reach world peace.

Stolen Koran Found On Tip from Thieves

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 900-year-old Koran—the sacred book of Moslems—stolen from the New York World's Fair Wednesday was recovered Thursday, abandoned in a mailbox.

The book, described as priceless by officials of the fair's Jordanian pavilion, was found after authorities received an anonymous telephone call.

"The man said he and his friend were drunk when they visited the pavilion last night and took the book for no good reason," a pavilion spokesman said.

"He sounded like he was sorry but more scared than anything," the spokesman added.

Fair authorities called police who notified a U.S. postal inspector to open the mailbox, located in a residential area of Queens not far from the fairgrounds.

The book, handwritten in Arabic, is bound in covers made of mother of pearl.

U.S. Troops In New Area

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. troops have entered the fighting in central Viet Nam where North Vietnamese soldiers were reported operating last week, a U.S. military spokesman said Thursday.

He said Americans of the 101st Airborne and the 1st Air Cavalry Division killed 18 Viet Cong in two skirmishes in Binh Dinh province Wednesday. It was the first direct entry by U.S. troops into the fighting between Vietnamese forces and elements of four Communist regiments northwest of the coastal city of Qui Nhon, 260 miles north of Saigon.

Hot Spot in Aden

GREAT BRITAIN'S pledge to the whole of South Arabia, including the little but strategically important colony of Aden, for full independence in 1968 is in no danger of abrogation. The British government has given its word in the matter. That is sufficient guarantee of its accomplishment.

It is the less understandable, therefore, that the group styling itself the National Liberation Front should have resorted to terrorism in Aden, a policy scarcely to be expected to make transition easier or to speed its achievement.

It has resulted, in fact, in the suspension of Aden's constitution, and rule from London, in a strict curfew and virtual martial law.

Apparently the idea of the dissident NLF is to discredit the British, to put the government of the United Kingdom in a position in which its enemies can accuse it of harsh suppressive measures against the freedom fighters.

Fair-minded people will never believe these inspired charges, of course, but the persistent campaign from Cairo, seeking to undermine British influence in the Arab world could have an undesirable effect upon the illiterate tribes of South Arabia—undesirable from the British point of view.

President Gamal Abdul Nasser of Egypt, as a result of the British suspension of Aden's constitution, is able to point with scorn, justifiable or not, at what he says is the ruthless treatment of the Adenis. He will never agree that the drastic remedy was not alone to protect British nationals in Aden, but the whole population. Britons are not the only ones to have been killed and maimed by the terrorists. Arabs, Indians, Somalis and Europeans have died.

But President Nasser considers the action against the NLF as an affront to all Arabs. He went so far as to refuse to see Britain's foreign office representative, Mr. George Thomson, on his recent tour of Arab states. Yet Mr. Thomson's sole purpose was to dissolve misunderstandings and assure the Arab peoples of Britain's desire for continuing friendship.

This friendship is important to Britain. Without it the future of her huge investment in the Middle East oil fields is in jeopardy. Without it there would be difficulties in negotiating the future of Aden's big military establishment. For Britain could only maintain this base on sufferance of an independent government, as in the case of Singapore.

In this light, President Nasser's hostile policy and his encouragement of the terrorists of Aden can be better understood. He has not forgotten the Suez incident, of course, and anything he can do to embarrass Great Britain in the Middle East could ultimately add to his own prestige and serve his own ambitions.

Happily, many of the traditional rulers in South Arabia appreciate Britain's position and good intentions and are co-operating in the introduction of a democratic form of government in their states. There is serious consideration of a wide federation, ultimately to include Aden, wealthiest and generally most advanced of them.

These things are for the future. And conceivably Britain might be asked to guarantee the independence she has sponsored . . . a condition which President Nasser would not welcome and which it is obvious he will stubbornly oppose.

Matter of Privilege

THE VICTORIA Police Commission, in its wisdom, has decreed that no special consideration shall be given to doctors who park their cars in tow-away zones or prohibited areas or who fail to put a nickel in a meter.

During a discussion of the suggestion that doctors might be privileged in the matter of parking, particularly when on emergency calls, Commissioner G. H. Carter observed that the $10 tow-away cost was not a financial hardship for medical men.

This, surely, has no bearing in the matter. Doctors, like firemen and policemen, are frequently required to attend the scene of accident. They may be on a life-saving mission. It is preposterous to suggest that they should have to waste time looking for a parking area where they will be immune from tow-away.

In a metered zone it is of no particular consequence, one would think, if they fail to put a penny or a nickel in the slot. And if they "over-park" they should not be penalized. The police department can very quickly identify a doctor's car by its licence. And a telephone call should be sufficient to preclude a summons.

As for tow-away, an instance once before referred to in this column might have resulted in the death of a patient. In that case a doctor on an emergency call was summoned for another, and when he rushed to meet it discovered his car had been towed away.

There is no need for special licences. Authorities should simply list them. There is not that much urgency, surely, to tow away a car that its owner cannot be identified.

During the blitz in London it was not unknown for doctors to park on the sidewalks.

Barrier to Service

BRITISH COLUMBIA's school trustees have voted almost two to one at their convention this year in favor of being given some modest remuneration for their services. The provincial government, which could bring in legislation to this effect, should be impressed by such a preponderance of affirmative votes. But even if the school board members themselves were not so much in agreement on asking to be paid, there would be cogent arguments for the additional and tangible recognition of their work.

Proponents of "honoraria" among the trustees spoke of an increasingly onerous and time-consuming job. By comparison with aldermen and councillors in this regard they certainly can make a case for compensation for their endeavors on behalf of the taxpayers and the families of their districts. What is fair for one group of local elected representatives can only be fair for the other.

There is another aspect of non-payment of the trustees, however, that is at least equally of concern to the communities they serve. This is that fewer and fewer citizens, seemingly, are able or ready to volunteer to make the sacrifice of time and energy that the job entails. In the last elections, in almost one-half of the municipalities in the province, the trustees were elected by acclamation for want of contestants; in 11, seats had to be filled by appointment.

Even if payment were on the same scale as for council members, no one would be likely to run for office for the money. But a barrier to service would be lowered.

"I'll huff and I'll puff and I'll . . ."

This Is the Liberal Formula

Hold Quebec and Rule the Country

By PETER DEMPSON

AMID the charges and counter-charges of this election campaign one issue has emerged which is hardly an issue at all.

It concerns the term "national" party. Trade and Commerce Minister Mitchell Sharp raised the theme. Since then the Liberals, in appealing for a majority on Nov. 8, have been insisting that they represent the only national movement in Canada.

In fact, Canada's electoral history has shown that the Liberals and the Conservatives (and only these two) can lay claim to national status.

If the Liberals fail in their bid for re-election Nov. 8, the only alternative to them at this time is the Conservatives.

The New Democrats, Social Credit and Creditists, regardless of how many candidates they enter, cannot win and their political leaders are resigned to this.

Three seats out of a possible 28 on the Prairies can hardly justify their claim of being a national party. But nevertheless they are, because of their past successes.

The Conservatives were just as much a national party on the basis of the 1963 results. Only in Newfoundland, which has seven seats, did the Tories fail to win. They had representation in all other provinces and picked off the two northern seats in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

The national party label also takes a beating when the Liberals look to the election policies of the late W. L. Mackenzie King for guidance in relation to Quebec. King used to say:

"If you can hold Quebec, all else will fall into place, and we will govern the country."

Only once since Confederation—in 1958, when John Diefenbaker swept the country by winning 208 of the 265 seats—could a party have won a majority without Quebec. The Conservatives captured 50 seats in Quebec in that election, but could have remained in office without them.

King learned the lesson of Quebec as early as 1917. He was with Sir Wilfrid Laurier when the Unionist Government was formed, under Prime Minister Robert L. Borden. Because of the war, the administration was above political partisanship.

King was not an MP at the time. But he quickly realized that with some support from Quebec, a party could win and remain in office. For that reason, he decided there and then that if he succeeded Laurier as national Liberal leader, the Liberals would always concentrate on Quebec.

The situation hasn't changed. King became national leader in 1919. And from then on, first with the aid of Ernest Lapointe and later with Louis St. Laurent, he lost his grip on Quebec only once. That was in 1930 when R. B. Bennett, under the impact of the depression, captured 24 of Quebec's 85 seats. It was enough to give Bennett a majority.

forts in the latter stages of the First World War.

The Liberals' claim to a monopoly on a "national movement" in Canada cannot be justified by the records.

In the Parliament recently dissolved, neither the Liberals nor Conservatives were represented in all parts of Canada.

The Liberals, while winning a hefty number of seats in the central provinces (52 in Ontario, and 47 in Quebec) in the 1963 election, failed to gain a single seat in Saskatchewan.

Alberta they captured one and in Manitoba, only two.

Three seats out of a possible 28 on the Prairies can hardly justify their claim of being a national party. But nevertheless they are, because of their past successes.

The Conservatives were just as much a national party on the basis of the 1963 results. Only in Newfoundland, which has seven seats, did the Tories fail to win. They had representation in all other provinces and picked off the two northern seats in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Paths of Peace Beckon

I READ with much sympathy

"Mother of Four" a letter concerning her PTA's apparent apathy on the issue of Viet Nam.

As one of millions who share her longing for peace, I nevertheless feel that very few of us are equipped to advise our own or any other government in the immensely complicated Viet Nam situation. Concerned though we may be, most of us have neither the knowledge nor the freedom from regional prejudice to be competent judges of international conflicts.

Where, then, can one channel the desire to "do something" in the cause of peace? For me the way which seems most reasonable and constructive is to support the idea, advanced by the World Federalists, of a reorganized and greatly strengthened United Nations. With a really effective UN, backed by a world police force, unilateral action by any nation could no longer be deemed a necessity, and wars between nations would be no more tolerated than wars between townships.

Marches and protests and pickets may be emotional releases, but they are questionably productive and often irrational ways to deal with problems which are far from simple. How much better to channel our energies into fostering and promoting a practical plan, the logical next step in social development: a community of nations, working out their problems, as do individuals, through equitable laws and, I would hope, a growing sense of responsibility towards people everywhere.

For me the way which seems most reasonable and constructive is to support the idea, advanced by the World Federalists, of a reorganized and greatly strengthened United Nations. With a really effective UN, backed by a world police force, unilateral action by any nation could no longer be deemed a necessity, and wars between nations would be no more tolerated than wars between townships.

Marches and protests and pickets may be emotional releases, but they are questionably productive and often irrational ways to deal with problems which are far from simple. How much better to channel our energies into fostering and promoting a practical plan, the logical next step in social development: a community of nations, working out their problems, as do individuals, through equitable laws and, I would hope, a growing sense of responsibility towards people everywhere.

performing a recital on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial after being refused entry to Constitution Hall was all the more moving for the circumstances surrounding the performance.

And so the remarkable thing is that although the Victoria Symphony Orchestra is not the New York Philharmonic and although Mr. Angers is not Mr. Heifetz, in the context of an orchestra produced from a population of 140,000 and a young French Canadian violinist who is teaching long hours and performing in the symphony as concert master this community is blessed with a calibre of artistic performance that stuns a critical listener as this writer believes himself to be.

Having offered his doubtful criticisms could not Mr. Thomas have noted that Mr. Angers' feeling for Bruch was amply demonstrated in passages of sheer joy that moved some of the audience to tears and is something that other more renowned violinists would no doubt exchange for some of their technique. Did he not hear the beautiful but near impossible legato trombone solo in the Saint Saeus played by Mr. Poper (an optometrist by profession) or the oboe solo in the same work played by Mr. De Jarnatt (age 18), both of which would have done credit to the New York Philharmonic. Did he not hear a whole orchestra composed mostly of part-time musicians brought together in a manner which would have matched European orchestras from communities of twice the size and 10 times the tradition, producing a performance which moved the audience to call back Mr. Angers five times at the Sunday performance.

That Mr. Thomas should find so little to enjoy is sad for him and it is fortunate for the community that despite his "stay away in droves" type criticism a near-packed house should be enthralled by the very same orchestra, playing the very same works on Sunday.

May I suggest that Mr. Thomas by all means spend half his space on criticism but the

Slow Death in Sweden

Whatever Happened To All the Birds?

By ROLAND HUNTERD from Stockholm

SWEDEN on their Sunday walks often pick up dying hawks, owls, and even eagles and take them to local veterinary stations for help, but usually, as it turns out, for a post-mortem examination. The cause of death is always mercury poisoning.

Most countries now recognise the dangers of insecticides, but in few are they so obvious as in Sweden.

Where it is generally the practice to spray complex organic compounds whose effects are debatable, the Swedes are almost alone in employing preparations of mercury, which is easy to identify and which, as every schoolboy knows, is a deadly poison. The matter has become an issue of public concern with the publication of a report by two scientists at Stockholm University.

On their own initiative, Dr. Gustav Rosen, a specialist in radiation biology, and Dr. Robert Nilsson, a zoologist, put their own work aside and concentrated on pollution of food by mercury. Their principal discovery was that practically all hens' eggs produced in Sweden contain it. Two eggs per day, according to their calculations, are enough to give a human being the maximum dose of mercury allowed by United Nations agency standards.

But scientists were scarcely necessary to raise the alarm, for the mercury-containing sprays have long since struck at the bird population, of which the evidence is starker in Sweden than elsewhere, since there remains so much near-wilderness, even close to cities, that people can see for themselves.

The dying birds they pick up are the final link of a chain which starts in sowing the fields. To protect their crops against fungus diseases during germination, Swedish farmers use seeds treated with preparations of mercury. Although their use is under state supervision, there is little control of their use in the field.

Birds, such as pigeons and finches, feed on the treated seeds. Mercury, unlike many other poisons, cannot be eliminated from the organism, and the birds store up massive doses, often just short of lethal. They, in their turn, are taken up by the birds of prey, who are poisoned by the accumulated doses.

The unusually rich wild life and the thoroughness of Swedish ornithologists have combined to illustrate, rather more dramatically than elsewhere, this process of extermination.

Fifteen years ago, the peregrine falcon used to be a common sight over Sweden; today it has all but disappeared. In 1958 about 800 falcons hatched, in 1960, about 100. This year, five are known to have done so.

To underline the situation, the species has been completely protected since 1956: before that it was freely hunted.

Mercury poisoning has been shown to be the only cause of the peregrine falcon's disappearance. If it did not kill the birds outright, it made their eggs sterile. It has also been responsible for the near-extinction of the white-tailed eagle, which used to be quite common along the Swedish coast. About 10 years ago, between 50 and 60 eaglets hatched. Last year, 17 did so, and this year eight are thought to have survived.

Unfortunately, vested interests are so strong that little has been done to control the danger, although the Swedish government set up a special authority some months ago to investigate the pollution of human environment in general. Farmers are interested in crops and profit; orthodox agricultural scientists play down the dangers of mercury-bearing fungicides; apologetic say human beings don't eat birds of prey, so the situation is acceptable.

But, in fact, pigeons and pheasants have dangerous amounts of mercury, and both are frequently eaten. Up to 500 times the maximum allowed by World Health Organization standards has been found in captured specimens. The danger was that they appeared to be normal. But these cases, as one writer has put it, are "only the tip of the iceberg." It is the widespread, latent trouble which poses the gravest threat.

Mercury has now been used in Swedish agriculture for about 50 years. The long-term effects of small doses are not exactly known, but scientists are certain it is stored for years and that the results are cumulative.

It is known to affect the central nervous system, and Dr. Rosen and Dr. Nilsson, in their recent report, also say that it probably has something to do with the cell-splitting mechanism. This means it could have far-reaching genetic effects.

The dangers, at least to wild life, are not confined to Sweden, for migratory birds are affected. Swedish farmers treat their crops with mercury both in spring and autumn. When birds arrive from the south after the winter they have used up their reserves on the journey, and gorge themselves on poisoned seedlings. They take their store of mercury back to their winter homes to nobody knows what damage to the balance of nature in another hemisphere.

Critics in Sweden, daily becoming more vociferous, want a total ban on the use of sprays while the dangers are investigated properly and innocuous substitutes devised. They also suggest that the time has come for international control of the problem.

"As it is," said one well-known Swedish ornithologist, "our generation is the last that will see the commonest birds of prey. It is too late to save them—but at least we can save what is left. If you disturb nature, she hits back hard, especially at men. The fate of our birds is a warning to ourselves."

Centralized Court Issue

Saanich Being Awkward

By IAN STREET

Look for more leadership from the provincial government in future on the issue of administration of local courts.

Leadership, in the sense that it is used here, of course, means that municipalities will be forced to streamline operations of local courts throughout the province.

This has been going on for some time already, with the appointment of district magistrates, and in Greater Victoria with the creation of central magistrates and family and children's courts.

As might be expected, not everyone is happy about these moves, which the government says are made in the interests of better administration of justice with the prospect of some cost-saving thrown in.

Saanich, in particular, has caused the attorney-general's department a good deal of grief.

Nothing the government does in this field seems to meet with Saanich approval. A central court was quite all right as long as it was held in Saanich. Now that the central court operations have shifted to new and larger quarters in Centennial Square the picture, it seems, has drastically changed.

Why all the fuss? Saanich has its own courtroom facilities in its public safety building at Swan Lake and would like to continue holding its own court there for the convenience of both authorities and public.

Saanich police, naturally, don't want to be put to the trouble of transferring prisoners to the Robert Bonner. It is on his desk, not that of any local council, that complaints land about courts and prosecutions.

True, certain responsibilities for provision of staffs and some physical facilities have been delegated to local authorities under the Municipal Act, but he is the man in the middle.

His and his alone is the final responsibility. The government is proceeding with what Mr. Bonner terms the upgrading of local courts throughout the province. It feels, in retrospect, that delays in achieving this aim have resulted from being too considerate of local feelings. But there is no turning back now.

In the final analysis the man who is responsible for the administration of justice in the province is Attorney-General central court, anymore than do those of Esquimalt or Oak Bay. The same might have been said of city police during the months the central court was located in Saanich.

As far as public convenience is concerned, the government says the area involved here is roughly the same as that of Vancouver, while the population which over there also uses a single court location (though several court rooms) is approximately five times as great.

It must now be obvious to all that the central court idea is here to stay.

A cabinet order-in-council during the past few days set new salaries for the three local magistrates and also formally drew up a schedule of local contributions to the cost of operating the court.

Victoria, whose population is being eclipsed by Saanich, is carrying the biggest load ($50 per cent)—though this is only fair because the city is richer than its neighbors. Saanich, so far, has refused to pay its (22 per cent) share.

City council, so far as the government is concerned, has done everything that could be expected of them, and a bit

Civil War Last Straw

Floundering Indonesia Faces Collapse

By DON HUTH, from Kuala Lumpur

A prolonged civil war involving the Communists in Indonesia could spell disaster for that floundering Southeast Asian country, already on the brink of economic chaos.

The country, fifth-largest in the world, is ill-equipped to meet such a strain and still maintain the political and financial stability it sorely needs to prevent a complete collapse.

President Sukarno, struggling to hold his one-man rule, has publicly admitted he cannot control the rampant inflation sweeping the country.

He recently "ordered" that it be eliminated in one year, saying Indonesia is rich enough to stand on its own feet. That was before the current crisis began. Indonesia currency was in bad shape. The rupiah had shot to 16,000 to $1—an all-time high. The official rate is 45 to $1.

Financial analysts attributed the jump to efforts by 10,000 or more Indian merchants to liquidate their holdings. Indonesia had announced its support for Pakistan against India in the Kashmir border dispute. Indian shops in Jakarta were seized by the government after violent Communist-led demonstrations against the Indian embassy.

The cost-of-living index in Indonesia, using 1955's 100 as a base, went to 1,500 in mid-1965. Rice, the staple food, has gone up 600 per cent since January and now is virtually out of reach for the average Indonesian.

But while the economy deteriorated, more late-model cars appeared on Jakarta streets than ever before. Luxury goods were available in the Chinese-dominated markets. Wives of prominent military and government officials appeared in costly clothes and flashed expensive jewelry.

Sukarno was fully aware of what was happening. He became irritated with propaganda and daily demonstrations directed against his government on price increases.

The leader of this campaign was Communist party boss, D. N. Aidit, whose part in the present upheaval still is not clear. Aidit employed youth organizations to parade the streets of Jakarta with banners condemning price manipulators, corrupt officials and militarists declared to be working for graft.

Aidit, whose 3,000,000-member Communist party is the largest outside the Communist countries, criticized Sukarno for naming obscure ministers to his cabinet. The president had had an unwieldy inner cabinet of more than 100 members. Its attempts to solve Indonesia's economic problems have failed.

The Communists concentrated their attack on manipulators the party said was racing the country to ruin. Aidit received powerful support throughout Java, the country's key island.

The Communists and their sympathizers now are reported concentrating in central Java, where they are strongly organized. They are moving into sectors where the fanatical Darul Islam, who demanded a Muslim state for Indonesia, fought the government for 12 years. A civil war could renew this religious movement's activities if the government's strength deteriorated.

Since Sukarno told the United States last year to "go to hell" with its aid and took Indonesia out of the United Nations, he has had to turn to his new alliance with China for financial aid.

The Indonesian Communists are being supported by the Chinese Communists. If a civil war is in the making against the Communists, Sukarno cannot be expected to get the financial help from Peking that he critically needs to meet the financial crisis.

The army, bitter over the death of six of its generals at the hands of Indonesian Communist or pro-Communist elements, is expected to show no sympathy if Sukarno presses for continued strong relations with Peking.

The 64-year-old "president for life" presumably is well aware of this.

If Indonesia does not get economic relief from somewhere and a civil war breaking out, Sukarno's "guided democracy" may have reached the end of the road.

Man Allowed Two Widows

MARSEILLES, France — When Albert Bellamy was killed by a streetcar five years ago he left two widows. He married the first under Muslim law in Algeria and had three children by her. The second was his blonde French wife Mireille, whom he married under French law here and who gave him two more children. Both sued the streetcar company for damages. The company appealed on the grounds that a man can have only one widow. An appeals court here ruled against the company, ordered it to pay both widows and fined it 400 francs (180¢) for refusing to recognize that a Muslim is legally entitled to two wives.

HOLLYWOOD — Tom Kennedy, onetime Keystone Kop whose career as a movie character spanned nearly 50 years, has died of cancer at the age of 80. Kennedy's building form and honest Irish face with the smashed nose made him familiar to generations of film fans as a purveyor of big, dumb cops, bartenders, taxi drivers and the like. He came to Hollywood in 1915 from his native New York after a career as a heavyweight boxer.

COPENHAGEN — The Danish government has proposed a pay increase for Princess Margrethe, the unmarried heiress to the throne. Parliament is expected to approve the increase, which amounts to $3,285 and would bring her salary to $36,451 a year. Her father, King Frederik IX, is paid $543,000.

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — Judge Charles Farris ordered two tow-truck boys to wash the six fire trucks they sent out on false alarms last weekend.

PETHAM, England — Anthony Clifford hopes to sail to the West Indies in six weeks on the 18-foot-wide trimaran he has been building for the last three years at his brother's farm here. There is one snag. He just found out the boat is too wide to go on the road leading to the sea.

OTTAWA — Norman F. Cragg, 51, of Ottawa has been appointed director of unemployment assistance for the federal welfare department.

LONDON — Col. John Glenn told British women writers none of the American women who have volunteered for a peace flight have been considered as suitable as the men, but one may some day be chosen.

SAN FRANCISCO — Mayor John Shelley has ordered the police commission to crack down on prostitution. Shelley said the situation was "so bad that the girls stand on street corners in clusters of a dozen, and blow kisses at passing police cars."

BERLIN — Russia's original spacewalk team of Pavel Belyayev and Alexei Leonov came as close as a wave of the hand to West Berlin. Their current tour of East Berlin took them to the Brandenburg Gate in the centre of the Communist wall and they waved cheerily to Western photographers on the other side.

CALGARY — Douglas Mackenna, who resigned in 1961 as defence minister over nuclear arms policy differences with then prime minister Brian Mulroney, says he has not as yet been approached about any meetings with the Conservative leader in Calgary.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — William Tabor, 22, who fled the county jail in May, returned to the building almost daily but not to finish his one-year sentence for forgery. Tabor, taken back into custody, told authorities he kept going back to wash windows as part of his job with a Milwaukee cleaning firm.

SWIFT CURRENT — The federal government should hold a referendum on the flag question, a Progressive Conservative nominating meeting decided. The Conservative choice is a Red Ensign with a green maple leaf in a white circle substituted for the Canadian coat of arms. The convention is a nod Jack McLean as party candidate for Swift Current-Macle Creek. He has held the seat since 1958.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — Dean Alfred Wolf has delayed his order to three University of Bridgeport students to get haircuts while he checks their contract. The students, Thomas Johnson, 19, Evan Charneck, 21, and Philip Sells, 19, who

Students Often Forced To Take Wrong Courses

Proud parents should not force their children to take the university entrance program in high school for the sake of prestige, Education Minister Peterson said Thursday.

In his keynote address to the 27th annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association in the Empress Hotel, the minister said this is one of the specific ills which the new B.C. high school curriculum is designed to cure.

Mr. Peterson told delegates that estimates based on aptitude indicate 35 per cent of those students who enter Grade 11 should be on the university entrance course.

MANY FAILURES

In fact, in recent years this figure has averaged 61 per cent, and as expected, the number of failures has been high.

"These failures, as a general rule, are the lost souls of the educational system," he said. "They cannot go on to university and they are not mentally oriented for vocational training."

The government realizes that this situation must be changed, so it has introduced 62 new high school courses this fall offering specialization not in academic and technical training but vocational courses for industry, commerce, and even the fine arts.

Both 'Weird'

Shnook, Troll In Court

LONDON — The long-haired Troll and the equally long-haired Shnook stared at each other across the courtroom. And the judge stared at both of them.

"Is it seriously suggested that articles of this kind are likely to attract buyers in the country?"

'DAM' GOODS

The judge, Mr. Justice Lloyd Jacob, was told it was so. The weird looking Troll doll was designed as a good luck charm by a company called "The Dam Things Establishment," registered in the tiny European state of Lichtenstein. The weird looking Shnook doll is made in Hong Kong and marketed by a London company.

INJUNCTION

The Dam Things Establishment was granted its request for a temporary injunction to stop the London company from selling Shnooks on the grounds they were almost identical with the design of the Trolls and were an infringement of copyright.

LOVE OR HATE

Nicholas Casdagli, whose company manufactures the Troll under licence in Britain, said after the case, "They really are extremely popular and we are exporting 40,000 a month. You either love or hate them. The judge obviously hated them."

Plane Flipped By High Wind

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP) — An Oregon state pilot is in good condition in hospital after his plane flipped over while attempting a take-off in high winds. Thomas Good, 18, of Roseburg, Ore., suffered a cut leg, while a passenger, Blake Harding, escaped injury.

STOCKHOLM — Cars are Sweden's biggest export to the United States and the demand is exceeding the supply, trade secretary Bo Lindner says.

'No Test for Broken Heart'

Emotional Stresses Show Physical Signs

There is no test for a broken heart or for stresses built up by overwork, and they can often lead to what is called a "nervous breakdown," Dr. Bernice S. Sachs told more than 250 personnel specialists at the Empress Hotel Thursday.

JUDGE AS WHOLE

Consultant at the Group Health Clinic and Hospital in Seattle, Dr. Sachs, a specialist in psychosomatic medicine, said that emotional stresses always had a physical manifestation and that the patient "had to be judged as a whole, in this day of modern medicine, rather than as a combined mind and body."

This is the third time the Victoria chapter of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association has been host for the annual convention of the organization.

Motorists Get Bird

REGGIO EMILIA, Italy (AP) — Poultry raisers are flagging down passing motorists — and giving them a free chicken. The farmers said it is their way of calling attention to tough times in the poultry business.

They have given away hundreds of chickens in the campaign.

A smorgasbord was held in the hotel last evening followed by a dance at the Crystal Garden.

NEW CONCEPTS

John J. Carson, chairman of the Civil Service Commission of Canada, will speak on new concepts in public administration at this morning's work session, and the noon luncheon speaker will be Russell Irvine, associate director of research for the Canadian Labor Congress.

They laughed when they saw a Scot start to make gin.

He smiled.

In 1769, all London had a great laugh at the idea of a Scot trying to beat the English at their own game. Making gin.

But Alexander Gordon was a spirited man. With a line of spirited ancestors that reached clear back into Scottish antiquity.

And so, while London laughed, he smiled a knowing smile.

The rest is history—how a Scot made English gin famous the world over.

Today, Gordon's is the best-selling gin in the world. Because Gordon's descendants are as canny as he was.

Nobody but Gordon's makes Gordon's Gin, no matter where it's made—and it's made in nine different countries, including Canada.

The exact and original formula is never varied for any reason whatsoever. Ever.

And nobody but Gordon's can approve the finished gin for bottling.

Now, some people won't understand all this fuss about making good gin. But you understand, don't you? You like gin. So do we.

Jim Taylor FROM LEFT FIELD

EDMONTON — His looks are strictly rugged leading man, his voice slightly nasal but forceful with new purpose. He has a pretty blonde wife and a tremendous zest for living.

But Howie Young is an alcoholic. He admits it, and because he does there is still a chance for the man once rated as having the potential to be one of the finest defencemen ever to play hockey.

Through 12 years of drinking, riotous living and stunts that have become legend wherever hockey men gather, Howie Young booted that chance away a dozen times. Until a day last May, when he woke up in the drunk tank of a Los Angeles jail, and wondered just where he was going.

"I'd wakened in drunk tanks before," Young said yesterday. "But this time I was lying there and all I could see ahead of me was a string of them. I felt like an empty beer bottle. Finished. I was 28, and I'd recognised myself to be dead before I was 30."

In the tank with him was a man who had been with Alcoholics Anonymous for 35 days and attended 37 meetings. Then he took a drink to celebrate his new-found sobriety. They talked, Howie went to an AA meeting, and for the first time in a tempestuous life Howie Young wasn't alone.

"I don't manage my life now," Young said. "I messed it up for 12 years. Now I've turned it over to The Big Fella."

He said it matter-of-factly. Howie Young has found something—not a religion so much as a belief. There is no church for Howie, although he has had some religious upbringing.

"What you need is a belief in power greater than you. It can be anything. Believe in a chair if you want, and if that belief works for you, fine. I've got all the religion I need in AA."

The Short, Wet Summer

Young spent two months last summer as bar boy at Lake Tahoe, pouring the shots for others. It made no difference, because Howie had it kicked. Now he is back training with Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey league, and if he can keep licking his personal devil he will probably wind up back in the NHL, because no one has ever disputed his ability. But if he doesn't make it, it doesn't matter.

"Whether I make it back to the NHL is immaterial. I'm working at it, working hard at it for the first time in my life. But it doesn't matter what I do from now on, as long as I do it sober. You ask me if I want hockey back. Baby, I've got my life back."

There were days in the past when you'd have got bets against it. Howie won't say why he started drinking or when, but he's been at it for about as long as he can remember.

"The first job I ever had, I blew because I was drunk. I was laying sod for a landscaper and I walked back from town to the job 10 miles and drunk. I lay down to sleep, and when I woke up they'd just kept right on working, laying the sod right around me while I slept. I was 15."

Howie played his junior hockey in Hamilton, and in 1958 began slugging and drinking his way through pro. He got 206 minutes in penalties while splitting the season with Chicoutimi and New Westminster. In 1961-62 he played 29 games with Detroit Red Wings, and drew 108 minutes.

Detroit shuttled him back and forth between the big club and Edmonton, hoping against hope that he'd grow up. But when he set an all-time pro hockey record of 273 minutes in 1962-63, they gave up and sold him to Chicago. He had a season with the Hawks, then was sold to the Blades.

And nothing changed.

Where the Buffalo Roam

It wasn't just the penalties and the drinking. It was the escapades that went along with them.

Howie would disappear for days and wind up hundreds of miles away. He'd be found swinging from a balcony and have to be hauled down with a strop. One story has it that he rode a rodeo clown's buffalo down a street in Edmonton to the rink, parked it, and went in to show off his cowboy boots.

Young denies that last one, but adds "I could have done it. I've done a lot of things I can't remember, and a lot of things I'd rather not. That's why nobody will ever get to me by razzing. For everything they yell, I can remember something worse."

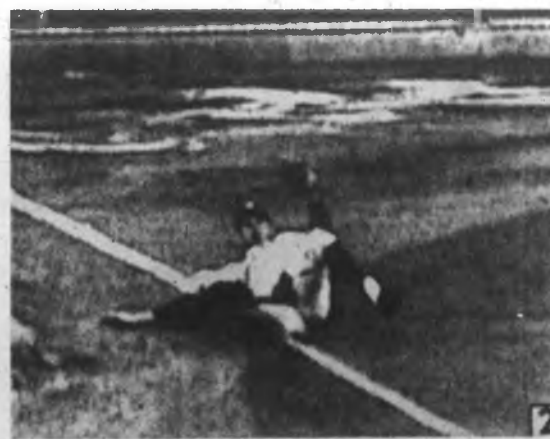

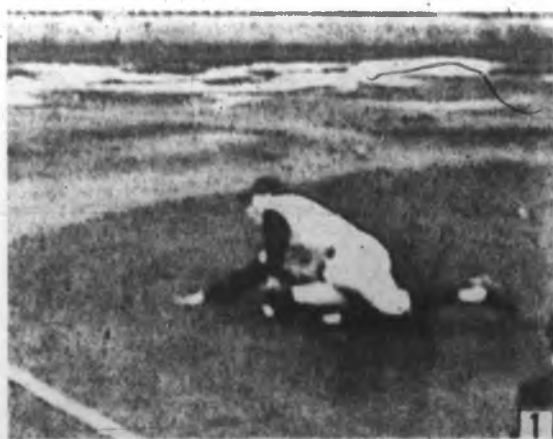

NHL president Clarence Campbell call him "the greatest detriment to hockey who ever laced on skates." Now Young says that by making it all the way back maybe he could help a few people "and pay my debt up there."

But he isn't finding the hockey part of it easy. "I had this feeling that if I was sober the rest of it would come. I sort of expected The Big Fella to come down and do my skating for me. I had to learn that I had to get in shape and work at it like normal people."

Since May 4, when he quit drinking, Young has lost 23 pounds and is down to 189. He has no idea what his best playing weight is "because I was never in condition," but he scored a goal Wednesday against San Francisco and feels the moves coming back.

"I'm not cocky about this AA business," he said. "I just know that today I'm not a drunk. Tomorrow I don't know. What I do know is that if I follow the program—do it one day at a time and never take that crazy drink—I'll stay sober. If I don't, I know I'll be either crazy or dead."

So Howie Young is still living his life from day to day. But now he can remember what happened yesterday, and hold a hope for tomorrow.

Here's how Twins' Allison made sensational sliding catch in fifth inning

Los Angeles Pitching Aces Trumped

Twins Two Up on Stunned Dodgers

By JACK HAND

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The scrappy Minnesota Twins, again led by little Zoilo Versalles, beat Sandy Koufax Thursday and went two up on the Los Angeles Dodgers with a 5-1 victory in the second world series game behind the pitching of Jim Kaat.

Heading to Los Angeles where the series will be resumed Saturday afternoon after an open date today for travel, the American League champions are in an enviable position. They have whipped the Dodgers' fearsome pair of Koufax and Don Drysdale, and are brimming with confidence.

Kaat, 27 in November, turned in a superb job with a seven-hitter while the Dodgers' defence collapsed with three errors. Jim Gilliam, the 36-year-old coach who returned to action at third base in May, opened the gates in the Twins' two-run sixth inning with a two-base error.

OUTSHINES WILLS
For the second straight day Versalles outshone Maury Wills, his shortstop rival, both at bat and on the bases. Zoilo, the 155-pound Cuban, scored two runs and contributed a triple to the Twins' attack. He also danced down the third base line and sped home as he forced Ron Perranoski into a wild pitch in the seventh.

To put the icing on the cake for the sellout crowd of 48,700 that watched in 56-degree temperature and a persistent drizzle, Kaat came through with a single with the bases loaded and drove in two more runs in the eighth.

WERE FAVORED

The Dodgers, who had gone into the series as 7½-to-5 favorites, now face an uphill struggle. Only the 1921 New York Giants, the 1955 Brooklyn Dodgers, and the 1956 and 1958 New York Yankees have overcome such a back-breaking handicap.

Tony Oliva, the American League batting champ who had gone hitless in six trips, knocked in the first run off Koufax. He doubled to the left in the sixth after Gilliam had let Versalles' shot bounce off his glove and go down the left field line for a costly error.

LOOKED IN DUEL

Until Gilliam opened the door with his misplay, Koufax and Kaat were locked in a shutout duel. Each had allowed only three hits and Sandy, who set a modern major league strikeout record with 382 in the regular season, had struck out eight in five innings.

After Gilliam's error, Joe Mauer's sacrifice, the double by Oliva and Killebrew's single, the Twins were never headed. They had a chance to open the lead wider but Koufax struck out Bob Allison and made Don Mincher ground out to end the sixth.

BIG THREAT

The big Dodger threat came in the seventh when Ron Fairly and Jim Lefebvre opened up on Kaat with singles to left. Wes Parker's sacrifice moved the runners and Johnny Roseboro's single to right scored Fairly. With the score 2-1 and men on second and third, Dodger manager Walter Alston called on Drysdale, his top hitter with a .200 average, as a pinch-hitter. Big Don went down swinging, missing three straight pitches by the Minnesota left-hander. Wills fled out, ending the threat.

Versalles hit his triple after two were out in the seventh. While Perranoski was pitching to Joe Nasek, Zoilo broke down the baseline.

Ron hurried his pitch and bounced one into the dirt that catcher John Roseboro blocked but couldn't hold. Roseboro tried a desperate backhand toss to the plate but there was no play as Versalles scored. Perranoski was charged with a wild pitch.

WIDE OPEN

The Twins broke it wide open in the eighth. A walk to Killebrew, a double by Allison and an intentional walk to Quibel following a balk loaded the bases with two out. Kaat, a dangerous hitter all season, singled to centre, scoring two more runs that put the game beyond recall.

The big fielding play of the day was a diving catch by Allison on a ball hit by Lefebvre near the left field line in the fifth. Fairly, who had opened the fifth with a single, was on base and would have scored easily if Allison had not made his sensational sliding stab.

In sharp contrast to the brilliant fielding by the Twins, Gilliam was charged with two errors. Left fielder Lou Johnson fumbled Killebrew's single in the fourth for the third error.

That Diving Catch The Turning Point

MINNEAPOLIS — Bob Allison's spectacular diving catch of a slicing fly ball to left-field in the fifth inning was the turning point in Thursday's game in the opinion of Sam Mele, manager of the Minnesota Twins.

"I don't know when I've seen a catch like that," Mele beamed. "It was a tremendous catch. It could have meant something for the Dodgers if the ball had dropped in there."

Allison made the grab with the game scoreless after Ron Fairly had opened for the Dodgers with a single and just before Wes Parker beat out an infield single.

Fairly would have easily scored had the ball fallen in and the Dodgers would have had two men on and no one out after Parker's dribbling hit.

Allison said it had to be the greatest catch he had ever made "because it came in the world series."

SWEEP TALK

Mele talked cautiously of a sweep after the win.

"I'd love to sweep," he said, "but they're a tough outfit."

The only unhappy person in the Twins' dressing room, and he wasn't really feeling too bad about it, was Zoilo Versalles.

Minnesota's brightest series star to date, Versalles felt he should have been given a hat on the ground smash which Jim Gilliam let get away to start the two-run sixth inning.

HARD HIT

"I hit the ball hard," Zoilo commented. "It had to be that it took a bad hop. I was surprised when I looked up at the scoreboard and saw that it was charged as an error."

On the surface at least, the Dodgers took their second straight defeat with considerable equanimity.

Both manager Walt Alston and pitcher Ron Perranoski had a quip when they were asked when the turning point came.

"When it quit raining," they both answered.

HAPPY TRIP

The Dodgers were all happy that the series is now to be continued in their home park.

"I know we'll have better weather, and I hope we can score more runs," Alston said. "I'll be glad when we change parks," remarked Maury Wills, adding quickly that he had no complaints about Metropolitan Stadium.

NO ALIBIS

Sandy Koufax offered no alibis.

"No, the weather, the mound, the park, had nothing to do with it," he answered a questioner. "I just didn't have the control I needed against this team."

Lefties Tackle Colwood

LA Means Last Again

Daily Colonist sports writer Jim Taylor is on a tour of Western Hockey League team training camps. Today he passes on some colorful remarks about the Blades of Los Angeles.

By JIM TAYLOR

EDMONTON—Spend a while watching Los Angeles Blades and you come away certain that LA stands for last again.

Lynn Patrick doesn't think so, but the man is brutally honest, and he's willing to admit there is a chance.

Patrick knows all about last place. It was his personal property when he was with Boston Bruins, who trailed the National Hockey League for the past five years. Somehow the man has retained a sense of humor, and he winces only slightly when he discusses the Blades' chances in the Western Hockey League.

"We've lost four straight in training camp, once to the Canadian National team (5-2). In the three games against San Francisco we've given up 24 goals.

NO MORE HELP

"We've got no more help coming from Chicago. Our defence has been bad and our offence scares me. I've got a couple of defencemen more dangerous to us when they've got the puck than when they haven't."

"And six of our first eight games are on the road against clubs in the American Hockey League. Boston bad? At times this looks worse than Boston."

JUST PLAYOFFS

But Patrick, while admitting he must go all the way with what he's got now, still thinks that he has a club that can make the playoffs. Not first or second, but the playoffs.

"Look, we lost Gordie Howe, Stan Maxwell, Lloyd Haddon, Jack Evans and Jack McCartan from last year's club," he said. "But I can't say we're weaker. I let them go because I knew we had to be better than that."

WANTS MONEY

"I think Jerry Toppazzini will be here. He just wants the money he got last year in Pittsburgh and I'm not about to give it to him. It's more than I was paying him when he was in Boston. He'll be here, and he'll help."

Patrick says he's not worried about his forwards, although they haven't looked good.

LOTS OF GOALS

He's got Willie O'Ree (38 goals last year), Brian Smith (35), Norm Johnson (26), Leo Labine (16), Gord Vejprava (19), Warren Hynes (18), and handyman Marc Boileau.

This season he's added another Schmalz, right-winger Bobby and left-winger Bill Urban from Saskatchewan Juniors. Patrick says both of them, and particularly Schmalz, look like they can make it.

SHOWN NOTHING

"I need another centre to go with Johnson, Vejprava and Hynes," Patrick said. "Cliff Pennington hasn't shown me anything. And most of all, I need a couple of defencemen."

Patrick's defence at the moment is enough to give a goal-keeper acute shell shock. Only Howie Young and Jack Hendrickson of the holdovers look capable of helping. Bobby Wilson, who came in an off-season trade with Buffalo, will help, says Patrick. Camille Bedard and Harley Hodgson aren't playing as though they will.

Covering fearfully behind this stalwart group through most of the exhibitions has been Jack Norris, who finished last season with Boston.

"I've got to believe he's a good goaltender, Patrick sighs. "But he hasn't looked like it yet."

Backing up Norris is Wayne Doll, a highly-regarded prospect from Estevan who was all-star in the Saskatchewan Junior League last season. But right

Patterson Returns To Cats

HAMILTON (CP)—End Hal Patterson, 32, who retired from professional football last July, will rejoin Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference for the remainder of their schedule.

He isn't expected to play in Monday's EFC tilt here against Ottawa Rough Riders, but he will finish the season with Hamilton and participate in the playoffs.

Hamilton team is weak at quarterback and injuries to fullback Art Baker and middle linebacker Herb Paterra have not helped. And there has been no adequate replacement for Patterson at left offensive end. Bobby Kuntz, a strong two-way player who also quit football this summer, has agreed to return to fill the vacancy left by Paterra on defence.

now he is a prospect. Nothing more.

And this is the club Patrick must take into Los Angeles, a town that has a team in the world series and a distressing tendency to think big league or nothing.

"We'll get by," Patrick says. "We won't be a powerhouse, but we will be in the playoffs." But Lynn Patrick, honest to the end, didn't say whom he intended to beat.

No Such Deal

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—General manager Hap Emms of Boston Bruins Wednesday night denied he had agreed to trade four members of his National Hockey League club for two members of a Western Hockey League club.

Coach Bud Poole of San Francisco Seals said in Edmonton earlier Wednesday that a member of his club—George Swarbrick, rookie of the year in the WHL last season—had been sent to the Bruins' training camp here as the first player involved in a six-man player trade.

Poole said his club would receive four players from the Bruins in exchange for Swarbrick and a second San Francisco player if Swarbrick can make the regular Boston line-up.

Emms said Swarbrick, 24, is expected to join the Bruins here today, but "there's no such deal." Swarbrick is coming in here on a loan basis. If he doesn't make the Bruins, then he's going back to San Francisco.

High Jump Champ Brumel Breaks Leg

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet doctors said Thursday they will not know for three days if Valery Brumel, world record holder in the high jump, will be able to compete again following a double fracture of his right knee in a motorcycle accident Wednesday.

The 22-year-old student, winner of the gold medal in his sport at the Tokyo Olympics, suffered the injury when the motorcycle on which he was riding home with a friend skidded. Brumel fell to the street and the machine toppled over on him.

WORLD RECORD

He set the world mark of seven feet, 5 1/2 inches in Moscow in July, 1963.

Brumel was operated upon during the night. Doctors said he suffered "complicated fractures" of two bones in the joint.

The doctors said the operation was a success but added it would take at least six months for the fractures to heal. Brumel pushes off on his jumps with his left foot and the injury is not as severe as if it had happened to his other knee.

U.S. and British Golf Teams Split Matches in Ryder Cup

SOUTHPORT, England (AP)—Pro golfers from the United States and Britain played to a 4-4 deadlock Thursday in the opening matches of the biennial Ryder Cup tournament.

Thursday's matches were alternate-shot foursomes, each team shooting one ball over the par-73 Royal Birkdale layout.

Friday, the same teams will play eight four-ball foursomes and the competition closes on Saturday with 16 man-to-man duels.

Each side won two matches in the morning and two after lunch.

BIG CHANGE

Probably never in the history of this competition has there been a greater change in a team's play than in that of Americans Arnold Palmer and Dave Marr.

In the morning round against Dave Thomas and George Will, the Americans lost five of the first seven holes and were defeated 6 and 5. In the afternoon, the Americans defeated the same British pair by the same margin.

Julius Boros and Tony Lema contributed a pair of points to the U.S. total. In the morning round they squeezed past Lionel Platta and Peter Butler, 1. California's mastered Bernie Hunt and Neil Coles, also 2 and 1.

Ken Venturi and Don January lost both their outings. In the morning they bowed to O'Connor and Allis, 5 and 4. In the afternoon they dropped a 3 and 2 verdict to Hunt and 1. Before lunch, the two

Esquimalt Stars Open Season

Action in the Esquimalt and District Hockey League gets underway tonight at Esquimalt Municipal Centre with the annual all-star game, scheduled to start at 8:15.

University of Victoria Vikings, who finished on top in scheduled league play, will face a team drawn from the other three clubs—Navy, Army and Pontiac Chiefs.

Each of the three clubs will provide a forward line for the all-stars, who will also have three goalkeepers and six defencemen.

Ron Griffiths and Ed Hastings of Pontiac and Phil Frank of Navy will likely share puck-blocking chores. They will be protected by ex-Nanaimo Jim Middleton, Ron Marshall, Bob Fowler and Pete Davis of Pontiac and Gary Anderson and Ray Gregoire of the Navy.

Tony Zeller, Len Desjardins and Jeff Eade will represent Queen's Own Rifles, playoff champions, as a forward unit. Orv Coulter, Wayne Anderson and Doug Couch of Pontiac will make up another attacking threesome and it will be Dale Frost, Brian Nelson and Omer St. Onge of the Navy together on the third forward line.

Riders Dominate Statistics Race

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders players hold down three top spots in individual Western Football Conference statistics released Thursday by statistician Bill Hawrylak.

Saskatchewan fullback George Reed has rushed for 1,191 yards in 261 carries. Calgary Stampeder fullback Lovell Coleman, who had played one game fewer than Reed when the statistics were drawn up, carried top passing quarterback with 2,137 yards on 153 completions out of 270 attempts.

Saskatchewan Roughriders pivot Ron Lancaster is second with 2,068 yards gained on 132 completions in 349 throws.

Kapp and Lancaster both have thrown 11 touchdown passes. Ed Ulmer of Bombers has a slight lead in the punting race. He has an average of 43.4 yards on 95 punts. Edmonton flanker Randy Kerbow is second with a 42.8 average on 83 punts.

Tonight's Calgary at Toronto game may be seen over channel 5 at 5 p.m. Saturday Lines at Edmonton over channel 3 at 8 p.m., according to network announcements.

The ball 158 times for 1,035 yards and second place in the rushing race.

Roughriders flanker Hugh Campbell heads the pass-catching race with 1,102 yards gained on 60 receptions. End Tommy-Joe Coffey of Edmonton Eskimos also has caught 60 passes, gaining 1,024 yards.

Halfback Gene Wasiuk of Saskatchewan is the best punt-return man with 376 yards on 59 returns. Winnipeg Blue Bombers Nick Wozny is second in the punt-return category with 306 yards on 49 returns.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Ducks, geese, pheasants and quail come in season this Thanksgiving weekend and band-tailed pigeons go out of season Monday.

Following mid-week rains and windstorms this weekend could see the best period of hunting yet this season.

Dry weather has hampered both access and hunting success so far this hunting season.

Deer and elk are both in season for bucks and bulls only all over Vancouver Island and to date success has been below that of last year.

Two elk came out of Nanaimo River area last weekend, one a bull and the other a cow that had been wounded and was found suffering by a separate group of hunters, who shot it and turned it over to game branch officials.

Be Seen—Be Safe is the slogan for the fourth annual Hunter Safety Week which starts Saturday and continues until Oct. 16.

B.C. Wildlife Federation president Jim Murray tells hunters that "while many factors contribute to hunting accidents, high visibility in the woods is still the major safety factor, and the wearing of some readily visible color while hunting is a simple, positive way in which every hunter can contribute to firearms safety."

The recent rains should help both salt and freshwater fishing, except there may be a period of a day or so of waiting while swollen rivers and estuaries get back to normal and the mud settles.

The rain was badly needed for rivers that were almost dry, millions of salmon that waited to get up them, forests that were parched.

For the first time in memory Canada's highest waterfall, Della Falls at Great Central Lake, had run dry.

Reports on trout fishing are all good from the lakes. Prospect Lake is providing some of the Island's best dry and greased line fishing, just before dark, with the trout gobbling the hatching midges and taking anything from rather well worn hare's ear flies to bi-visibilitys and small dry flies.

Lower Campbell is good for trollers and so is Cowichan Lake, which was badly hit by the mid-week storm which sent the water rising nearly two feet. Great Central is producing well and Skutz Falls area of Cowichan River is providing great sport.

Now is the time to go after the cutthroat in the river estuaries and off the beaches near river mouths.

The coho are drawing in ever closer to river mouths, but there are still some to be taken off Sooke and Brokeheide. Winter springs have arrived off Oak Bay, right inside the Breakwater and off Cattle Point, and now is the time to start looking for them in Becher Bay.

This is the weekend of the big three-day coho derby at Cowichan Bay and some anglers, including Chris Heaketh, who hooked a seal as well as several coho this week, have been getting good catches on bucktail flies.

Jack and coho are now being caught in the bigger rivers by spin casters.

Coho fishing off Nanaimo has been reported as hot. Claytons, French Creek and Qualicum Beach are all giving up coho, but fishing seems to be slackening off. At Qualicum only guide boats will be available for rent this weekend. The storm forced boathouses to pull their rental boats up in a hurry.

This is about the last chance to fish Alberni Inlet and remember the Inlet is closed until you round Polly Point. Rain muddied up the Inlet, but it should be clear and maybe hot fishing for the weekend.

For those who like to enjoy their winter fishing indoors Ted Davies has started his annual fly tying and fly fishing night school course at Oak Bay Senior High School draughting room, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday nights, and he has room for a few more enthusiasts. Helping him will be fishing experts Les Leacock and Bill Hooson. Cost is $15 for 15 lessons.

House Majority a Must Groos Says of Election

Without a majority government Canada will always be in the middle of an election, even if not in the country at large, David Groos, Victoria Liberal candidate, said Thursday.

Mr. Groos returned to the city at noon Thursday from a meeting of the military committee of the NATO Parliamentary Conference, at which he was re-elected rapporteur by the delegates from the 15 nations represented.

"In a minority government situation such as we have had at Ottawa, members try to make a point useful in an election, instead of getting down to the business of debating the merits of individual pieces of legislation."

Of the local political scene, Mr. Groos said, "I will naturally be the target."

NEED TO JUSTIFY

"I will have to justify the work of the government and my work as MP for Victoria in the last Parliament."

Other issues?

START SHOOTING

"The opponents will make further issues when they start shooting."

"As far as I am concerned, the main issue is majority government."

NEW YORK VISIT

Mr. Groos reported that when he was in New York Monday through Wednesday of this week, the main topic for all three days for all New York was the Monday visit of Pope Paul to the U.N.

"The sincerity of the Pope's effort on behalf of peace came across to the whole public. He made a great impact."

RAPPOURTEUR

Mr. Groos' work as rapporteur at the NATO Parliamentary Conference involved making a report on specific military problems, answers to such questions as, "What is France going to do now in respect to NATO?"

"Article 13 states any nation that wishes may give one year's notice and leave, as from 1969."

STRANGE MOVES

"France has already made some strange moves — withdrawal of officers and naval forces and withdrawal from some military exercises from NATO command."

"France has told the allies they must not station nuclear weapons on French soil."

THREATS

The other day President de Gaulle threatened to leave NATO unless some changes (not specified) were made."

Despite this concern, Mr. Groos said, no disagreements at the conference on the basis of need of NATO occurred and all delegates present—including the French—gave unanimous approval to two main points:

MUST CONTINUE

• The NATO treaty must be continued.

• There is a continuing requirement for U.S. troops to be stationed in Europe.

Mr. Groos reported "improvement in atmosphere" in relations between Greece and Turkey, in their dispute over Cyprus.

STABILITY

"Not only have the Canadians in Cyprus been able to maintain peace, but work is going ahead by a NATO economic committee to provide stability for the island in this field."

Mr. Groos emphasized the "two main points" of NATO when the treaty was drawn up—military and economic.

Increased economic emphasis "may well be beginning" to fill the role envisaged by the founders.

Rocket Fire Suspended

TOKYO (AP) — The United States has suspended practice firing of Little John rockets in the foothills of Mount Fuji at the request of the Japanese government.

The government asked that the firing be suspended to avoid classes with demonstrating farmers.

Holiday Issue Opposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. School Trustees Association have voted against the granting of special holidays to mark visits or deaths of dignitaries. The association will ask the education department to forego such holidays in favor of special assemblies.

Still Shortage Of Skilled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sawmills, shingle mills and pulp mills reported continued shortages of skilled operators during September, the acting metropolitan manager of the National Employment Service, Milled Ross, has reported.

'Miss Malaprop' and calumnifications

Readers Relish Smart Alecdotes

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Schoolgirl Tessa Tracy's mangled maxims have made her a sudden celebrity.

Tessa, 17, is an attractive blonde long famous among family and friends for cunning, puns and fractured phrases like:

"He's nothing but a liar and prefabricate." "It's so rheumatic to eat by candlelight."

Through the years her mother took notes and recently the Santa Barbara News-Press printed The Collected Sayings of Miss Tessa Tracy . . . A Boni Malapropist.

The Associated Press carried them. Now Tessa's getting letters from appreciative readers from all over the continent. Many echo her style.

A professor of urology at the University of California sent "best wishes for your continued excess."

Tessa, replying, asked the professor: "Is urology myology, too?"

An Arizona wrote her from Phoenix:

"I have been an set-up and nerval recently that I think the only real smart alecdote for my malady is to inscribe to your service."

He enclosed a $3 cheque "for one year's inscription" to Tessa's witticisms.

She returned the cheque, saying it wouldn't be "honorous" to keep it because she hadn't "yearned" it.

Cuban Citizens Reach U.S.

MARATHON, Fla. (UPI) — What may be the first boatload of Cuban refugees to reach the United States under Premier Fidel Castro's new "open door" policy landed here Thursday.

Six women, six children and three men arrived in a 25-foot boat. One of the men told newsmen that the Castro government helped them leave the Communist island.

The 15 reportedly were taken to Key West.

CHECKING REPORT

Federal immigration and customs authorities said they were investigating the reported arrival, but added they had no immediate knowledge of the incident.

It was reported that Varilame Julian Rosales, an exile living in Miami, phoned his wife in Cuba and told her to meet Camaroca in Matanzas prov. him at the port of Boca de la Ince.

Not Encouraging

Whalers' Catch Marginal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The whaling fleet returned from waters off Vancouver Island, Wednesday, and reported a total season catch of only 850, down 21 from last season.

British Columbia Packers Ltd., which owns a half-interest in Western Canada Whaling Co., said the whaling operation still is marginal and not encouraging financially.

ONE HALF OF FLEET

Japanese interests own the other half of the whaling fleet.

K. F. Fraser, president of British Columbia Packers, repeated earlier statements that North Pacific whaling stocks may be wiped out.

NORTH PACIFIC

Whaling expeditions were sent into the North Pacific this season by Canada, Japan and Russia. Fisheries sources indicate the Japanese and Russian kill was heavy.

NEAR EXTINCTION

Japanese and Russian fleets have been sending whaling vessels into the North Pacific regularly since whaling stocks in the Antarctic were practically exterminated, said Mr. Fraser.

He said he will go to Japan shortly to discuss the future of Pacific whaling.

Number 13 Lucky At Track

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — To the superstitious a black cat and the number 13 actually court disaster.

To an unidentified couple at the Finger Lakes racetrack, they resulted in a $15,277 twin-double payoff.

The couple said they picked the numbers, which totalled 13, from the license plate of an automobile that had stopped in front of their car to avoid hitting a black cat.

Community Chest

Door Stays Open
For New Groups

The coming residential census for the United Appeal of the Community Chest of Greater Victoria, which begins Oct. 18, raises questions concerning the various agencies which benefit from it. Each day for nine days a question and answer will be printed. Here is question No. 6.

Question — What is the Community Chest doing to reduce the number of separate campaigns?

Answer — The Community Chest has done, and will continue to do, all it can to provide Greater Victoria with one annual, efficient campaign representing all private health, welfare and recreation agencies in the community.

An open-door policy has been maintained over the years and any agency which will meet the standards considered essential by the Community Chest will be welcomed into the federation.

In the final analysis, the answer lies with those who give.

Mayhew, Richards, and McCowan discuss newly-designed sloop

Sloop Hopes High

Five Nearing Completion

By BOB PETHICK

A hull designed with Victoria in mind might be the best way to describe the as-yet-unnamed class of sloop which will make its debut at the 1966 Vancouver Boat Show.

But even before the debut, the first five of the 26-foot racing-cruising sloops being built at Philbrick's Boat Works in Sidney will have been delivered to owners here.

The sloop, designed by Victoria naval architect Raymond Richards, displaces 4,000 pounds and has a rated sail area of 330 square feet.

It will comfortably accommodate a crew of four in two cabins and is designed for a large galley. Power, either in-board or outboard, is fitted at the owner's option.

"They will make excellent competitors on long courses, such as the annual Juan de Fuca Race for Class C yachts, and will perform well around bays," says designer Richards.

The hull is of fibreglass with a deck of treated plywood. The designer said fibreglass was the best choice for a fully-moulded hull, while plywood was an efficient solution for relatively-flat deck surfaces. The cast-iron keel and the outboard rudder have advanced flat forms.

The mast and boom are aluminum, with the main sheet arrangement designed to make maximum use of the flexible boom, and stainless standing rigging is arranged to make use of a flexible mast.

The design shows a high sail-area-to-weight-surface ratio and a correspondingly high proportion of ballast to make it stand up and drive to windward.

Designer Richards said this class should receive a favorable rating—about 20.0—under the Cruising Club of America rule.

"We have long felt a need for a boat in this price range ($6,000) that could be used in competition and as a family cruiser," said Logan Mayhew, president of Mayhew and Strutt, which will handle sales of the new craft.

"We are pleased to be able to offer a boat that is designed in Victoria and built on Vancouver Island at a competitive price," he said.

Mr. Mayhew hinted that the firm would be looking for business in the United States. Mayhew and Strutt have bought the design and the moulds which will be used in construction.

A key part in organizing the designing and construction of the boat was played by Donald McCowan, a keen sailor and manager of Mayhew and Strutt, who first saw the need for a competitive craft.

Prominent Chinese Dies at 88

Joe Gar Chow, a prominent member of the Victoria Chinese community, died in Edmonton Wednesday at 88.

Mr. Chow was one of the leading elders of the Chinese here. Jack Lee, president of the Chinese Benevolent Society, said Mr. Chow would "rank among the most distinguished of the city's Chinese since they first arrived here 100 years ago."

"He served in every possible capacity, inside and outside the benevolent society, for the good of the Chinese residents," Mr. Lee said.

He came to Canada in 1896 and established a Chinese drug store here, dispensing herbs and traditional remedies.

In 1951 he moved to Edmonton to be near his son and family.

Capped by a $126,000 dormitory, the project will be complete by February, Headmaster David D. MacKenzie said Thursday.

NEW ERA

It will open a new era in the life of the boys' school at Mill Bay which was closed by fire from 1948 to 1961.

Brentwood College was founded in Victoria in 1923 by a group of businessmen. Its 30 students lived in Brentwood House at University School.

1947 FIRE

Fire struck in 1947, and the school closed a little more than a year later.

But in 1960 a group of alumni, or Old Boys, formed an association that succeeded in reopening and relocating the school at Mill Bay a year later.

FUND A SUCCESS

A fund drive that opened last June quickly garnered $250,000 from individuals and businesses. The money is being spent on a $60,000 science block, the residence and a playing field, plus expansion of existing facilities.

Despite construction of the 55-bed residence, the school will expand its capacity of 178 boys by only a dozen, said Mr. MacKenzie.

"The project is to give us more facilities, rather than more students," he said.

1967 Planned

NANAIMO—The board of directors of the National Centennial committee will meet the local Centennial committee chairmen and provincial sub-committee members here October 13.

The meeting will review Centennial plans and hear suggestions from Centennial officials.

Nanaimo Biological Station

$2,000,000 Expansion

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—

Work will start this fall on an extension of the Nanaimo laboratory of the fisheries research board, Fisheries Minister Robichaud said here Thursday.

Mr. Robichaud said close to

$2,000,000 would be spent to improve research facilities at Nanaimo.

Initial work would cost

$275,000 for the reclamation of three acres of waterfront and construction of a wharf and access road.

Mr. Robichaud said work should start early in 1966 on the $1,500,000 extension to the laboratory itself. It would open in 1967.

The minister also said that a meeting would be held next week in Washington to discuss the question of interception of B.C.-bound salmon by U.S. fishermen in southeast Alaskan waters.

"It is my hope that a mutually satisfactory solution will be reached as a result of these discussions," he said.

Batten Down for Winter

By BOB PETHICK

It's time to "batten down the hatches for winter-time."

With Monday's wind and rain followed by another blast Tuesday, which weather officer William Mackie says would have done credit to a good winter storm, residents became aware that summer was behind them and while winter here is more pleasant than in most Canadian cities, the chilly opening blast has been fired.

The weather action begins each fall as the days grow shorter and the storm track, an area where most summer storms originate, moves down from the north for the winter months bringing all its goods.

Heavy wind storms that usually start in October are caused when masses of cold air moving south across the comparative warmth of the Pacific Ocean gather turbulence from that warmth. Prevailing weather currents carry these disturbances across the B.C. coast, bringing the winds Victoria residents have good reason to remember.

Monday's winds were likened by Mr. Mackie to one rung of a wagon wheel with its centre near weather station Papa, 900 miles out in the Pacific.

"The worst of the storm was nowhere near us," he said. The storm moved slowly into the Gulf of Alaska where the winds hit the 80-mile-an-hour mark. In Victoria—guests rose as high as 46 miles an hour. The second rung, which arrived Tuesday, gradually tapered off to allow Wednesday's and Thursday's good weather.

As the days shorten and weather becomes colder, the storm tempo may be expected to increase.

About now would be a good time to check around the front and back yards to see if anything has been left out that can be swept away by the wind and do damage.

Everyone who lives in Victoria knows we don't really have violent winds here—although gusts of 90 miles an hour have been recorded—and you can't be too careful.

It would be a good idea to check trees for dead branches. In a high wind they can sail quite a distance.

While the long-range forecast for October promises above-normal temperatures and moderate rainfall, this could mean many mixtures of cold and warm air and frequent storms off the West Coast. The forecast promises October will be a dull month.

One thing is for sure: Anyone who remembers the 100-mile-an-hour winds of October, 1962—when a Martin Mars bomber, anchored by massive concrete blocks, was heaved more than 1,000 feet at Patricia Bay Airport and close to $500,000 in insurance claims were filed after the wild blow—has probably already taken full precautions.

It may be the finest winter on record is coming. Weather department officials hope so. But on the other hand...

If Reeve's Idea Adopted

Esquimalt to Preserve Snippets of History

Snippets of history will be preserved forever if Esquimalt council adopts an idea that will be put forward by Reeve A.C. Wurtele at the next council meeting.

The incident that set the ball rolling took place Monday night when Esquimalt council suggested naming the new breakwater and the area it sheltered after a family named Fleming.

NO ONE SURE

But there was one small problem. No one was immediately sure who the Fleming family was.

It was known that a family named Fleming lived in a large yellow house near what is called Fleming Beach in the early 1890s.

PHONE CALLS

A number of telephone calls were made to the Esquimalt council after a family named Fleming was named down at first.

Then on Wednesday, Reeve

Wurtele received a letter from Mrs. M. K. Taylor, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fleming, original owners of the house.

PHOTOGRAPHERS

Edgar Fleming and his brother were photographers, with offices on Government Street.

In her letter, Mrs. Taylor said her parents moved into the house in 1892. She was born there and lived there until she was 10 years old.

She remembered there was no electricity or water in the house. Water was drawn from a well by a windmill. But there was always a phone because of the lonely location of the house.

TO BE RECORDED

It is information like this that Reeve Wurtele proposes to have recorded, either by a member of the municipal staff or someone familiar with Esquimalt's history hired on a part-time basis to interview pioneer residents of Esquimalt and record their stories.

Council Reviews

Taxi Fare Dispute Far from Solution

A taxicab fare dispute, which has been simmering for months, was no closer to settlement after a conference between company representatives and aldermen Thursday.

On one side are the larger companies, with Ken Nordal of C and C and Robert McLean of Bluebird Cabs as spokesmen. They are asking a 10- to 15-per cent fare increase.

On the other, the smaller companies want the present scale maintained.

INCREASES

Mr. McLean told aldermen that, while costs have risen 200 to 300 per cent since 1948, fares have increased by about 30 cents a trip.

Mr. Nordal pointed out that drivers' pay was not comparable with other industries and that one big reason for a fare increase was so that they could be paid more.

He suggested that drivers would turn to "other ways" of making money if the demand was rejected and this was immediately contested by the chairman, Ald. Robert Baird.

"What do you mean by 'other ways'?" That almost sounds like a threat, I don't like that statement," the alderman said.

STANDARDS FALL

Mr. Nordal said it certainly was not meant as such. He meant that the standards in the industry would fall.

Sonny Gineas, proprietor of Capital City Cabs, speaking for the smaller operators, said rates were high enough.

REPORT PENDING

Companies like his, he said, were concerned mostly with local trade rather than outside trips, and felt that a fare boost would mean a decrease in business.

The matter was deferred by members of the council finance committee, pending a report from the city solicitor.

Blunders Cost Medics $9,000,000

HARROGATE (Reuters) — Nearly £3,000,000 ($9,000,000) has been paid out to hospital patients for blunders made in British operating rooms, a nurses' conference was told Wednesday.

Dr. T. W. Brooke Barnett, deputy secretary of the British Medical Defence Union, said sometimes the wrong patient was operated on, or the wrong leg amputated.

Last year there were 29 cases of wrong operation compared with 13 in 1963.

Half the compensation cost was paid by Dr. Barnett's union and the rest by the hospitals involved.

Dr. Barnett said the bulk of the payments had been since the Second World War.

Evidence which supported his claim of corruption at HMC Dockyard was stolen this week when his home was ransacked, says Clarence Billett, 404 Sherb Street.

Clogs Walk In

Reporter Fleet and Sliver-Footed

By BARRY JOHNSON
Dutch wooden shoes are selling big as Souvenirs of Victoria. I expect it's probably better you shouldn't ask why.

There'd only be a lot of unnecessary talk about what they can be moved to spend their money on.

And tour... visitors are sensitive and every bit as good as most folks, especially here. Don't they support Handicrafts and admit it about The Climate?

Anyway Jack Phillips, who doesn't let motivational research stand between him and a good thing, stocked 144 pairs at his downtown shoe repair parlor last June. I just got the second-last pair.

Mrs. Hazel Funk, 3827 Carey, watched narrowly as I tried them on but later said they were very nice, and graciously avoided reference to their size.

Jack says They've been cheerfully paying about $4.50 a pair for them and sneaking off to pink stucco motels to try them on privately.

But they aren't alone. A good many were bought by people he knew perfectly well to be Victorians, even though they wore bright-colored shirts and talked loudly as a cover.

They have laces painted on the instep and I liked that. They aren't too comfortable, but I plan to pack the looser areas with straw.

Speed, I'm afraid, is out. But I will excel in the mud. That, of course, brings up the ever-present danger of rot. Nor should teredo worms be dismissed. The rot can probably be held down by changing the straw at regular intervals. As for the worms, I plan to apply a coat of reliable anti-fouling paint and keep on the move while in teredo zones.

There is little to be done, unfortunately, about attacks by fungi from within.

But, if the worst happens, the fungus could be nurtured into luxuriant drooping growth and we'll hang the whole arrangement on the lamp post out front.

Green Belt Grows A Notch

Lanibrick property fronting on Torquay Drive in Gordon Head area will soon become an integral part of Saanich municipality's proposed green belt. Final arrangements to acquire the 44.39 acre site are expected to be completed soon. —(William Boucher)

New Jail, Court Praised

Victoria's new central magistrate's court and jail facilities have come in for praise from the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island.

"One cannot help but be pleased with the new accommodations for those under arrest and awaiting trial," said T. P. Donegani, president of the society, after its directors and staff were conducted around the facilities, Thursday, by Police Chief J. F. Gregory.

"By contrast with what was available in this area before the new facilities were opened, we must admit that the present structure has gone a long way toward giving this area jail facilities surpassed by none," said the president.

Court Cost Referred To Council

The question of refusal by Saanich to pay any part of the cost of maintenance of a central magistrate's court in Victoria was referred Thursday to city council.

The letter announcing the Saanich attitude was read at a city council legislative committee meeting and "received and filed."

Assistant City Manager William Hoonson said no specific instructions in the matter had been received from the attorney-general's department. Senior Magistrate William Ostler merely set up court in the Centennial Square building.

City Treasurer James Brambley said he was billing Saanich for its share of the capital cost of the building and its contents, staffing and maintenance. Whether or not the bill was paid was not his concern.

Scout District Elects Mitchell

T. A. Mitchell Wednesday was elected president of the Camosun District Council of the Boy Scouts.

He succeeds John L. Rimmington, president for the last four years, who was presented with a gold Thanks Badge at the election meeting.

Centennial Deadlock Averted?

Stadium on Campus Appears Certainty

By A. H. MURPHY

Siting of Greater Victoria's centennial sports stadium on the University of Victoria campus seemed a certainty Thursday.

Mayor Wilson and a majority of Victoria's city council are known to favor locating the stadium on the campus, and the Reeves of Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt indicated their preference for the Gordon Head area Thursday.

Placement of the stadium there would have the effect of resolving a deadlock which has been shaping up between Saanich and Victoria.

Saanich has proposed that the district centennial project be a stadium and sport complex on a 40-acre area in the Burnside-Tillikum section of the municipality, and Victoria envisaged a 2,150-seat stadium in the Topaz Park district west of Rose Street.

Up until Thursday, when the university location was suggested, there seemed to be no answer to the impasse. Each municipality was firm in the belief that its plan was better.

It was indicated at City Hall last week that university authorities would approach the 1967 centennial committee with a proposal in about 10 days. Site suggested encompasses about 40 acres at the end of Ruby Road.

Positive confirmation of the plan was not given by university authorities Thursday, but Dean of Administration R. T. Wallace said: "There is some hope we may do some discussing in about 10 days time."

Proposed discussion, he said, was based on "a fairly casual talk on the possibilities."

Land to Be Donated

The land would be donated for stadium use by the university, and all of the Greater Victoria centennial grants, which amount to $450,000, would be devoted to the stadium.

It is likely that the stadium would be similar to that envisaged in the Victoria scheme—a stressed-concrete cantilever-type edifice.

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich said Thursday he personally favors the idea.

"It makes a great deal of sense to me. I don't think we would abandon the Burnside-Tillikum location, of course, as it has great potentialities for sports fields. But the location of a stadium at the university answers a lot of questions."

Reeve Curtis stressed, as did

Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay and Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt, that the question would have to be formally submitted to their councils for approval.

"I think this is a very good solution to what seemed to be a deadlock. I certainly favor the idea, although I want to see it outlined in much more detail," said Reeve Cox.

"It sounds like a good idea. Having the stadium where the students are is very sound, I think. It is certainly better than having the stadium in the city," said Reeve Wurtele.

Reeve Curtis added that Saanich reluctance to accept Victoria's plan was not based on parochialism but on expert opinion.

Oak Bay Wins Right To Appeal Zoning Law

Oak Bay municipality Thursday won a court battle in which an attempt was made to block an appeal in the rezoning bylaw wrangle.

Council is fighting a decision earlier this year in the B.C. Supreme Court, when Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton revoked a bylaw which would have allowed Beach Drive property to be used for apartment block development.

In Court of Appeal Thursday, the residents who started the action against the municipality and property owners claimed council's appeal should not be heard because, in the lower court, it had declined to take part in the proceedings.

But the result of this and two more motions placed before court was that council and property owners would have to go on to a later date.

In his Supreme Court ruling, Mr. Justice Wootton, while commenting that there was no legislative precedent requiring the municipality to defend its bylaw, was critical of its failure to take part in proceedings. "This is not a contest between the owners of the property to be rezoned and the electors of the municipality," he had observed. "The contest is over the bylaw itself, and the proper party to defend the bylaw is the Corporation."

NOT HEARD? The justice said he quashed the bylaw because he was not satisfied the Sept. 28, 1964, public hearing on the bylaw gave those in attendance full opportunity to be heard.

He had heard complaints that potential speakers were discouraged by a warning from the chair that there should be no repetition of argument.

Mr. Justice Wootton also found the bylaw not sufficiently explained. The appellants claim Mr. Justice Wootton was wrong to consider the public hearing had a bearing on the legal validity of the bylaw, or that anyone was discouraged from addressing the meeting.

They also deny there was any uncertainty about the bylaw, pointing out if there was, there were severable clauses which did not justify the quashing of the whole bylaw.

He said the group has no official name or official status. "We are just View Royal residents who are trying to inform other ratepayers of the district advantages of becoming a township," he said.

One thing is certain, he said, the provincial government will not let us remain as we are.

He pointed out that North Saanich had incorporated on its own.

"So why not View Royal," he said.

The group will distribute a pamphlet explaining its views to area residents on Saturday.

View Royal Group Seeks Incorporation

A group of View Royal residents is making a move to incorporate as a township rather than amalgamate with Esquimalt municipality.

Those favoring a township believe the area residents have not been fully informed of the advantages of incorporating as a township, group chairman Gerry McKenzie, 2795 Craigman, said Thursday.

FEW ADVANTAGES

"We cannot see many advantages to View Royal if we amalgamate with Esquimalt," he said. "Esquimalt residents cannot afford to give us many concessions, and still keep their taxes in line."

He said the group has no official name or official status.

"We are just View Royal residents who are trying to inform other ratepayers of the district advantages of becoming a township," he said.

Nobel Prize Winner Has Busy City Schedule

Nobel prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling faces a busy day Saturday when he visits Victoria for two speaking engagements.

He and Mrs. Pauling will tour Victoria, join a private luncheon and an evening banquet during their day-long stay.

Dr. Pauling's main talk will be given at 8 p.m. in the University of Victoria's Gordon Head gymnasium. He will speak on the world quest for peace.

Earlier, at 3:30 p.m., Dr. Pauling will lecture in room 169 of the Elliott building, also on the Gordon Head campus, on the subject of Blood.

The public is welcome at both talks.

Present with the candidate for tea or coffee and conversation with constituents will be Mr. Hunter's campaign manager, Geoff Ellis, and official agent, Dr. Charles Ennals.

While John Diefenbaker is trumpeting the Conservative cause the night of Oct. 15 in the Bay Street Armory, the Victoria NDP candidate, J. Lloyd Brereton, will be hosting a wine-and-cheese literary party at the faculty lounge on the University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus.

That same evening, Victoria Liberal candidate David Gross will be drinking coffee at an informal meet-the-candidate get-together in Henderson Hall on Yale Street in Oak Bay.

The national leader of the Communist Party of Canada, William Kashtan of Toronto, will be in Victoria Oct. 21 to address a public meeting in support of retired naval commander W. S. E. Morrison. Ernest Knott, 424 Skimmer, will be campaign manager and official agent for Mr. Morrison, who lives in West Vancouver.

David Gross didn't get much shopping done on his Monday-through-Wednesday visit to New York, and apparently not many others in the city did either.

"Many stores closed Monday during the Pope's visit. The stores along Fifth Avenue near St. Patrick's Cathedral were boarded up, for fear windows might break from pressure of crowds," he said. "And Wednesday was Yom Kippur, a sacred day for the Jews, so many stores were closed that day."

One "gift" Mr. Gross brought into Liberal campaign headquarters for office workers Thursday afternoon was another 800 or so opinion-survey ballots from a questionnaire on national issues recently sent by Mr. Gross to constituents in the riding.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I was amused by the letter from the young man who wanted your opinion of males who shave their chests in the interest of comfort, coolness and cleanliness.

It reminded me of a situation which produced a variety of reactions from the men and women who work in my husband's office. I was never able to figure out the real story. Maybe you can help.

A friendly, attractive young junior executive used the warm weather as an excuse to remove his necktie and unbutton his shirt. It wasn't just the top button, it was three buttons—so the hair on his chest would show. He kept this up even after air-conditioning was installed, which made me suspicious.

The older women thought it was revolting. The younger girls thought it was sexy. My husband said it was because the fellow was vain about his masculinity.

What do you say?—UNRESOLVED

Dear Unresolved: A man who goes around displaying the hair on his chest may give the impression he is proud of his masculinity, but psychiatrists will tell you that he really is plagued with doubts about his maleness.

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago my husband and I moved to this city and we do like it here very much. The people made us feel welcome from the first day.

One of my closest friends is a woman who is popular with everyone. Maggie has never met a stranger. All types, ranging from the fanciest people in town to the common, ordinary ones, are crazy about her.

Maggie works in the church and is an active part of everything worthwhile that goes on. Heaven knows where she gets the energy. She has a large family and a big house and yard, and does all her own work.

Maggie has only one fault and it bothers me a lot. She goes downtown barefoot and with her hair in curlers. Should I tell her or shouldn't I—JUST DON'T KNOW

Dear Just: The postmark on your envelope was Bristow, Oklahoma. Cultural patterns vary from city to city but I can't believe that bare feet and hair curlers are acceptable in the business district of any town.

If Maggie came from a city smaller than Bristow (like maybe a reservation) tell her gently that she ought to wear shoes and leave the curlers at home when she goes to town. If she came from a larger city she knows it and doesn't give a darn, so keep quiet.

Dear Ann Landers: You deserve six lashes with a wet hash-mark for your advice to the Army wife whose children have no respect for their dad.

Some children can cope with the everlasting uprooting and the absent father, but most Army brats suffer terribly and develop all sorts of complexes. Our children, ages 10 and 12, learned from the cradle that their daddy belongs first to his country and second to us. Naturally, we are disappointed when our personal plans are spoiled by unexpected military orders but this does not lessen our love or respect for him.

Re-think this one, Ann, and answer again. Will you?—A VETERAN

Dear Veteran: You missed the central point of my reply. Friend. That father was absent even when he was present. The kids ignore him and refuse to take him seriously because he has macaroni where his spine holds. Had he been a plumber it would have been the same sad story, so don't blame the military. I didn't.

Newlyweds Return From Alberta Trip

Now living at 1724 Newton Street, following a wedding trip to Alberta and Northern British Columbia, are Lawrence William Cross and his bride, the former Marlene Joan Holman.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Holman, Belton Avenue, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Cross of Kelowna.

Rev. J. A. Roberts officiated at the evening ceremony in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, at which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

Her gown was of nylon over taffeta with scoop neck, lily point sleeves and lace trim at the waist, with a bow at the back of the softly pleated skirt to hold her train.

A white floral headpiece held her shoulder-length veil of illusion net, and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Attendants were the bride's cousin, Mrs. A. Knight, and Mrs. J. Galbraith. They wore sheath dresses of pink rayon chiffon over taffeta with bouffant sleeves and scoop necks. They wore pink taffeta bows with pink net in their hair, and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Walter Cross was best man for his brother, and ushers were Mr. Gerald McGovern and Mr. Kirk Davis. Mr. Douglas Hobbs proposed the toast to the newlyweds.

Camp Wiped Out

Terrifying Mud Slide Nearly Traps Family

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bob Yorke was getting ready for bed Wednesday when he heard the first sounds of the slide.

He didn't wait to hear more. Grabbing his trousers, Yorke dashed naked for what he hoped would be safety — a sturdy cookhouse.

FULL ACCOUNT

Yorke, 21, gave a full account Thursday of the mud and rock slide that crashed down a mountainside into his logging camp on the north arm of Burrard Inlet — an extension of Vancouver's harbor and about 30 miles from the city.

The slide virtually wiped out the five-building camp, with loss estimated at $80,000. Yet all six people in the camp escaped injury.

As Yorke raced for the cookhouse, the slide crushed the camp's powerhouse and dashed everything into darkness. Seconds later, as he made it through the cookhouse door, the full brunt of the slide hit.

HARROWING MINUTES

First to go was the small buildings from which Yorke had fled. Then an empty bunkhouse was lifted up and deposited on a float, both sank, along with a 22-foot cabin cruiser and two skiffs.

Yorke, who runs the camp with his father, Adam Yorke, 51, said the next few minutes were harrowing for the two men, their wives and children.

Inside the cookhouse were Yorke's wife Muriel, 24, and step-mother Janet Yorke, 35, who were listening for Tuesday's midnight weather forecast.

New Aircraft Combines Aerodynamics

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7 (UPI) —Lockheed-California Co. today announced plans to build an aircraft that will take off like a helicopter, stop its rotor blades and fold them, and fly on as a 500 mile per hour fixed wing plane.

Engineers of the company, a division of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., said the speed of the fold-back rotor aircraft would be double that of the fastest conventional helicopter now in use.

"I tried to put on my pants in the dark," said Yorke, but the cookhouse spun around and hit a stump and some trees.

The back wall caved in and a tree crashed through the window.

MUD, MUD, MUD

Mud flowed in, burying Yorke and his step-mother were trapped in mud to their waists.

Muriel Yorke said:

"The only thing I could think about while I was in the mud was 'I'm going to have to swim'."

because I thought the cookhouse was sliding towards the salt chuck."

GOT PANTS ON

Yorke finally got his pants on after freeing his wife.

Meanwhile, Adam Yorke, son Gary, 9, and daughter Lorie, 5, were getting ready for bed in the main house.

The house was picked up by the mud and carried into the water where it sat on a base of mud and rock.

Yorke said only the main house could be salvaged.

Woman Claims Policeman Assaulted Her

Blonde, pony-tailed Rebecca Bowden has alleged she was struck by a Victoria city detective during a police raid on her home, court was told Thursday.

The officer, Det. Douglas Grant, however, said in evidence he had grasped her fingers in an attempt to release a piece of tissue paper he saw her crumple up.

HIT ON FACE
He added that at this time he was knocked to the floor by a blow on the left side of his face, "and the next time I saw Mrs. Bowden she no longer had the piece of tissue paper in her hand."

In the same raid, police matron Elsie Elverhoy was "severely bitten" on the arm by a dog.

ON CHARGES
Mrs. Bowden and her husband Robert, who live at 1216 Oxford, are being tried in central magistrate's court for illegally recording bets.

Mr. Bowden has also pleaded not guilty to assaulting a peace officer.

SEARCH WARRANT
Det. Grant said he was accompanied by Mrs. Elverhoy on the Sept. 11 raid on the house in Oxford Street to avoid being conspicuous.

He rang the front doorbell and asked Mr. Bowden, who answered, "if this is the office of Crown Transfer," then stepped inside and informed him he was a police officer who had a warrant to search the premises.

CRUMPLED PAPER
He found Mrs. Bowden in the kitchen. As he approached her, she crumpled a piece of pink tissue paper she was writing on into a ball, the officer testified. Det. Grant then told of the blow he received.

YELLING 'ASSAULT'
He said that afterward, Mr. Bowden stood over him "yelling something about assaulting his wife."

The officer added he took possession of a yellow writing pad with various figures written on it and a roll of pink tissue paper.

ARM BLEEDING
Det. John Mason said he entered the house at the rear, accompanied by Det. Lyle Somers. He handed Mr. Bowden his search warrant and the man threw it on the table.

The officer said he then noticed the police matron's arm was bleeding and arranged for her to go to hospital.

PHONED LAWYER
Mrs. Bowden, he went on, claimed she was struck "by the man that came in the kitchen."

Her husband had picked up the telephone and informed someone whom the officer took to be his lawyer that "someone had forced his way into the house and struck his wife."

Hearing was adjourned until Oct. 13.

Robert Crawford, 611 Frances, was handed two years probation by Magistrate William Oster.

"I am satisfied it would be of no value to either the public or yourself to send you to jail," the magistrate told him.

'TAKE HER BY FORCE'
Police said Crawford, who is 79, was nabbed carrying a small arsenal consisting of .38-calibre revolver loaded with five shells which had been mislaid, two pocket knives, a claw hammer and a pair of tin snips.

He was stopped near a house on Whittier where he said he had gone to take his housekeeper by force.

TRAGEDY
Crawford pleaded guilty to possessing offensive weapons. Magistrate Oster said Crawford could be sent to jail for a long period.

"This might have been a great tragedy," he said. It was clear, however, the incident was quite out of character, he said. Crawford had a reputation as a gentleman and respectable citizen.

Tenant of a basement suite at 2533 Quadra, Heinrich Beyer, powered an oven and heater for $5 apiece and as a result pleaded guilty to their theft.

Det. Edward Hardy said Beyer claimed he did not realize he was stealing the articles and intended to redeem them from the pawnshop at a later date.

Beyer was remanded to Oct. 15 for sentence.

A mother of five, Aileen Dheensaw of 1760 Taylor, was said to have obtained $30 worth of clothing from Hudson's Bay Company on fictitious accounts.

The 37-year-old woman pleaded guilty to using false pretences but because of family commitments was allowed bail until Oct. 15, when she will appear for sentence.

For the second time in three years, Laszlo Balogh, 131 Clarence, was convicted of assaulting the woman he had once lived with as his common law wife.

Evidence was that he entered the woman's home at 12:30 a.m. Sept. 29, postured her for a cup of coffee and later struck her on the head. Balogh admitted being there but denied deliberate assault.

The magistrate fined the man $250 and bound him over to be of a good behavior, particularly toward the woman.

Reds Poisoning U.S. Cigarettes

VUNG TAU, South Viet Nam, (UPI) — U.S. army airmen at this helicopter base on the coast southeast of Saigon were warned not to accept cigarettes from Vietnamese nationals. They may be poisoned, the fliers were told. American commanders said the Communists apparently have come up with a poison which is injected into American cigarettes purchased on the black market.

Grounded Ship Enters Drydock

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 5,600-ton American-owned train ship SS Alaska, is undergoing repairs here for a crumpled bow suffered when she ran aground at Whittier, Alaska, during a storm last week. The Alaska put into Burrard Drydock here after returning to Vancouver under her own power.

There's the phone. RING!

You're short one cake for the bazaar? I'll get started on one right away.

That thing always cuts into my lap time!

Now! Go to the next scene at Peter's home, Mike! Keep your coat buttoned until the lights are out.

Then, by turning your body to aim the infrared camera—and tripping the shutter by arm pressure—you should get some very interesting shots.

What a lot of trouble Steve! Just to show up two cheap crooks!

But Madame Darwin and Dr. Calton are making no penny-ante plans! This came from that ex-con's little engraving shop today, doctor! I had to give him $300!

Splendid! Investment Madame! Are Ross Bloom will pay $300,000 for the contents of that package!

Archie said he was over here looking at your new "Mad Garbo" wig.

Yes! It's in that box in the hall!

Isn't it a disaster?

Well, I suppose it may do something for you!

No sense of humor!

The bandit's car speeds away from the stunned victims...

Another successful coup—without violence! Like if some night she handed the "cross" matter to "Police Plant"!

Yah! I'm worried about Pussycat, though! Like if some night she handed the "cross" matter to "Police Plant"!

A deep sigh escapes from the massive figure in the front seat!

Quiet, butch! Let me concentrate!

"At this moment," the bearded giant whispers, "I see her strutting contentedly with a handsome young man! She is not thinking of disloyalty!"

I can't decide whether to buy a chinchilla or a mink coat this fall.

Oh, dear! It's such a hard decision to make!

But, Blondie, you can't afford any of them!

I know! That makes it even harder!

He calls his first witness. "Did you see the defendant stab his first victim?"

"Yes, sir, I did. Rip was walking down the street late at night when this here woman pulls a switchblade on him, and he had no choice but to slash out at her first. It was quick thinking on his part, because that woman meant to do him harm."

The second witness, Zeke Ripper, is called.

"Zeke, eight days after Rip defended himself, he ran into another woman on the street. What was her name?"

"Dark Annie Chapman."

"Would you repeat that again?"

"Dark Annie Chapman."

"What happened, Zeke?"

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I ask you, what kind of woman would wear clothes like this and bring shame and worldwide publicity to the good people of Lowndes County. No white man will be safe on the streets of Hayneville if you find Jack the Ripper guilty of defending himself. Put yourself in his place. Wouldn't you have done the same thing?"

The foreman says, "No need for that, judge. We find the defendant not guilty and we wish to take this opportunity to nominate Jack the Ripper for sheriff of this God-fearing community."

Let's bust out of Kigmyland!!

All over the world people are being kicked around by other people!!

Why shouldn't we get our share?

We've put up with decent treatment long enough!!

I'll return that dollar you loaned me for the gas tomorrow, Judy.

I don't want you to do that! Besides, I'll be leaving for college in a few days!

When will you be home again?

Probably not until the Christmas vacation!

Take care of yourself, Glenn. And I hope your job works out real well for you!

I can't see where a single thing belonging to me has been taken from the apartment, Desmond.

My modest possessions are equally intact, sir.

Frankly, I'm beginning to feel insulted, our silver service certainly is worth stealing.

I've taken the door lock apart and these scratches show that it was picked by a top professional.

If theft was our visitor's motive, or is something else behind this terrorist campaign?

Garden Notes

Recap on Dahlias

By M. V. CHESNUT

In yesterday's column I gave some details on when and how to take up dahlias roots for winter storage indoors, but because of space limitations I could give only a rather sketchy outline. Today I would like to go over the ground again, explaining one or two points a bit more fully.

First, should the clumps of dahlia roots be stored whole or cut up into individual tubers before storing?

There are some solid advantages in dividing them: for one thing, tubers take up a lot less storage space than whole clumps. Trouble is, HOW to cut them up. In the spring when the tubers are beginning to sprout, even the greenest novice can make sure each division is sprouting a shoot in the fall. It isn't so easy to make the cuts in the right places. If you want to take a crack at it, though, this is how you go about it.

First, take a look at one of your clumps. The woody centre part is the stub of last year's topgrowth, and radiating outward from this are the tubers, each one looking like a skinny sweet potato. Each of these tubers is capable of making a dahlia plant on its own next year.

It would seem easy enough to cut the tubers away from the clump, but it must be remembered that the important part of a dahlia tuber is its neck—the thin end where it joins the old main stem. This is the point where the "eye" is located and where the tuber will sprout next spring, so it is VERY important to retain all this neck when the tuber is cut away. A dahlia tuber is something like a seed potato with only one eye—if the eye is damaged or removed, the tuber will rot in the ground when planted without pushing up any topgrowth at all. To make sure each tuber has its growth eye intact, then, it is best to take a silver of main stem with your knife when detaching the tuber from the clump.

Another important point is the labeling, and there is more to this than meets the eye, for if you plant up your dahlia bed next spring with a hodgepodge of unidentified bulbs, you may wind up with all the tall ones in the front rows and the shorties in the back where you can't see them. A very good way to label individual tubers is to write its name directly on its skin with India Ink. I have a gadget called a Dr. Mark Pocket Pen which I picked up at our local supermarket that I use for this and dozens of other garden markers.

In yesterday's article I recommended storing dahlias in boxes or cartons filled with vermiculite or peat moss, and to many folks this may appear to be an unnecessary expense. I admit it is possible to keep dahlia roots under cover safely through the winter if you can give them low temperatures and high atmospheric humidity, as in a root cellar or farm dugout, but where the only available storage place is an ordinary home basement, some sort of covering is essential.

I have tried dipping the tubers in hot wax, spraying them with liquid plastic, sealing them in plastic bags and burying them in sand, but nothing has worked as well as vermiculite or peat moss. The virtue in these materials lies in their ability to absorb excess moisture from the tubers, but to hold that moisture in reserve and give it back if the tubers tend to become too dry.

My thought on the expense is this: If you are going to buy peat moss or vermiculite for the garden next spring, buy it this fall instead. It isn't money down the drain, for after the dahlia bulbs are taken out and planted, you still have your vermiculite or peat to use for starting seeds and slips, for mixing into houseplant soil mixtures, for improving the soil texture in outdoor beds and planters, and even for improving the lawn.

ART BUCHWALD in Understanding Alabama

Pals Try Jack the Ripper

After reading the accounts of the recent trial in Hayneville, Alabama, where a jury found a socially prominent citizen "not guilty" of killing a civil rights seminary student, one wonders how Jack the Ripper would have fared if he had been a citizen of Alabama and had been caught and tried in Lowndes County.

It might have gone something like this.

First, the grand jury would indict him for manslaughter instead of murder on the grounds that, although he killed five women, it was done without malice.

Then the trial takes place. An all-white jury made up of friends of the Ripper family is selected, and the judge, who is Jack's uncle, warns the prosecution to be brief and refrain from calling too many witnesses.

The county prosecutor reluctantly charges that Jack killed five women by sitting their throats and spreading their innards about. The people in the courtroom chuckle and several of Jack's cousins wave to him. The prosecutor produces the knife as evidence and then rests his case.

The defence attorney for Jack does not deny the charges, which causes members of the KKK in the courtroom to applaud. But he maintains Jack was acting in self-defence.

He calls his first witness. "Did you see the defendant stab his first victim?"

"Yes, sir, I did. Rip was walking down the street late at night when this here woman pulls a switchblade on him, and he had no choice but to slash out at her first. It was quick thinking on his part, because that woman meant to do him harm."

The second witness, Zeke Ripper, is called.

"Zeke, eight days after Rip defended himself, he ran into another woman on the street. What was her name?"

"Dark Annie Chapman."

"Would you repeat that again?"

"Dark Annie Chapman."

"What happened, Zeke?"

"Wal, Rip is just strolling along and suddenly Dark Annie comes up to him with a pistol in her hand like she's going to kill him, so Jack pulls out his knife and slits her throat."

"Where's the pistol now, Zeke?"

"Some nigras rushed up and took it away 'fore the police came."

"Thank you, Zeke. Now, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I'm not even going to call any witnesses in regards to the killings of 'Long Liz' Stride and Kate Edowes, because there is no need to. Jack saw both these women kissing nigras and he went up to them and told them to stop it and when they didn't Jack did what any Hayneville gentleman would do and stabbed them both in the abdomen."

"As for the killing of Black Mary Kelly, I'd like to call Jefferson Lingo Ripper. Jefferson, what happened in your own words?"

"This here Black Mary, she come up to Rip and she said something to him that I can't repeat here in court and poor Rip followed her to her room and cut her up. I've known Rip since he was a boy and he wouldn't hurt a fly, but that woman provoked him something awful."

Laughter from the court.

"Are these Black Mary's clothes?"

"Yes, sir."

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I ask you, what kind of woman would wear clothes like this and bring shame and worldwide publicity to the good people of Lowndes County. No white man will be safe on the streets of Hayneville if you find Jack the Ripper guilty of defending himself. Put yourself in his place. Wouldn't you have done the same thing?"

The foreman says, "No need for that, judge. We find the defendant not guilty and we wish to take this opportunity to nominate Jack the Ripper for sheriff of this God-fearing community."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Jennifer Jones Back

LONDON (NANA) — I hope reports that Kim Stanley's marriage is foundering are untrue, despite rumors that her husband flew to London to escort her back to New York. "When Miss Stanley arrived for her role in The Idol, I was informed by the capable and attractive Canadian director, Dan Petrie, 'I met her at the boat. She was weeping and she literally staggered into my arms. My wife had to stay with her at the hotel for two nights. Kim would call me all the time, sometimes sobbing, sometimes laughing hilariously. She reported for one day of rehearsal and I realized she was too heavy, and not well enough to undertake the role, which is that of a woman, attractive and sexy, who has an affair with her 19-year-old son's best friend.' The actress who replaced her, Jennifer Jones, another great performer, looked relaxed and better than I ever remember seeing her. She fits the part perfectly and I have a hunch we will be seeing a great deal of Jennifer from now on, both on the screen and on stage."

Eva Bartok and daughter Diane are in Berlin for her new play. Eva, who has maintained silence on the subject of her daughter's father, was telling a friend here, "Diane will be brought up as an English lady." That is right and proper.

Director Roger Vadim was quoted here as saying that, if wife Jane Fonda is as successful in the new image he created for her, as Brigitte Bardot was, he will sit back and let her support them both. I hope he was kidding.

This time it isn't Terence Stamp who is being difficult on the set—of Modesty Blaise. Terence usually claims up for the press and closes all the doors. It's his co-star, Italian Monica Vitti, who is being a bit of a headache. "Killing" this and that photograph of her pretty face. But no matter what Monica does, in this department she can never be as difficult as some of the oldtimers, and I do mean Claudette Colbert, who was sure that one side of her face could not be photographed and all the furniture had to be arranged so her good side only would appear on camera.

One important field of research that is still comparatively neglected by the medical and scientific disciplines is the effect of weather upon human behavior. I have believed and written for a long time that its influence is greater than we imagine.

One hopeful sign of the rising interest in this fascinating subject was given at Geneva, Switzerland, early this summer, when 18 experts from 10 nations submitted a report to the conference of the World Meteorological Organization.

The report said, among other things, that figures based on 1,000,000 individual statistics showed significant changes in human conduct and health during periods of atmospheric change. During thunderstorms, for example, traffic accidents rise by 70 per cent, births rise by 11 per cent, deaths by 20 per cent, work accidents by 20 per cent, and pains in chronic patients by a full 100 per cent.

(Oddly enough, the research also demonstrated that a baby conceived in cold weather is more likely to be a boy, and in hot weather a girl. The highest number of conceptions occur in June, and of illegitimate children in May.)

In the section on the effects of weather on illness, the report showed that many diseases and symptoms are aggravated by sudden weather changes. Increases in tuberculosis were noted in clinics "after oppressive warm weather before thunderstorms, during humid, cold, foggy weather, or sudden heat waves."

Other diseases notably aggravated by sudden weather changes are heart ailments, asthma, hay fever, bronchitis, skin cancer, influenza, infantile paralysis, ulcers, and the common cold.

What the meteorologists call "biologically unfavorable weather" has long been known to social researchers, although they have no name for it. City police departments are aware that hot and humid nights with more static electricity in the air, will heavily increase "family trouble" calls, as well as crime and violence generally. (And accident statistics from 50 major European cities show that figures increase sharply during "biologically unfavorable weather.")

In Nigeria, the hot and humid period before the rains is called "the murder time," when the homicide rate doubles. The natives, who are closer to the phenomena of nature than we may have a sharper smell than the scientists for the atmospheric changes that propel our minds, bodies and feelings into perilous states.

Cabinet Appointment

Stewart Named To Head Medical Plan

The cabinet Thursday appointed Geoffrey Stewart president of the B.C. Medical Plan, succeeding William Veitch.

Mr. Stewart, 49, who joined the plan in 1963 will also continue in his present post of secretary-treasurer for Government Employees Medical Services plan, which covers nearly 60,000 government workers, their families, and MLAs.

Mr. Veitch resigned recently to become deputy provincial treasurer in Manitoba.

The cabinet also appointed Dr.

Harry Watson of New Westminster a director of the government-run plan. He replaces Dr. E. C. McCoy, who resigned because of a possible conflict of interest with his post as executive director of the B.C. Medical Association.

APPOINTMENTS

Other directors named when the plan was set up June 8 are Dr. Peter Banks, immediate past president of B.C. Medical Association, legislative counsel Gerry Cross, superannuation commissioners W. H. Forrest and W. G. McClure.

Missile Site Security Still Secret

MONT LAURIER, Que. (CP)—RCAF officials will not be required to testify about the "contents and structures" of a Bomarc missile base at La Macaza, Que., a judge ruled Wednesday after an RCAF witness was asked at a trial what would happen if a steel bullet hit one of the base's four launching pads.

Judge Gerard Laganier made the ruling during the trial of Daniel Belac, a medical student, charged with kidnapping a provincial policeman, Const. Onil Burdon, last July.

FO Lionel Cloutier, a security officer at La Macaza, refused to tell the court whether anything would happen if a steel bullet hit a pad.

Burdon was held for 20 hours after he went to investigate a report seven armed men were camping near the missile site.

A display expert who worked with the Royal Ontario Museum and the British Museum in London, as well as the National Museum of Canada at Ottawa, has joined the staff of the provincial museum here.

Erik Thorn, 36, who received his early schooling in Victoria, studied art in London, Paris and Toronto. He also made a trip across Africa to sketch and collect specimens of mammals. Here he'll play a major role in artwork and displays for the new $6,000,000 provincial museum scheduled for completion in the fall of 1967.

Fourth Body Found

SHERBROOKE, Que. (AP)—Quebec Provincial Police, looking for victims of an underworld purge, Thursday discovered a quicklime-covered body at the side of a secondary road 45 miles north of Sherbrooke.

The discovery brings to four the number of underworld victims unearthed so far by investigators.

The other three victims were found in woods near St. Gilles, 20 miles south of Quebec City.

Claude Wagner, Quebec justice minister, said at a press conference in Montreal Monday that the bodies were those of men slain by racketeers anxious to stop their talking to authorities about such activities as fraudulent bankruptcies and arson.

BIG RING

The murders, he said, were being forced by his department's investigation into a giant arson and fraudulent bankruptcy ring which is said to be one of the biggest ever to operate in Canada and to have international connections.

The Quebec justice department later identified the body as that of Paul Chandonnet, a 38-year-old Sherbrooke shopowner.

The justice minister said Chandonnet played an active part in an arson and false bankruptcy ring and was to have been called as a witness in arson cases which now are before the courts.

SEARCH CONTINUES

Mr. Chandonnet, formerly of Quebec City, was a business associate of Moise Darabauer, a 45-year-old Quebec City businessman who now is before the courts charged with arson, fraud and conspiracy to commit arson and fraud.

The search for bodies continues in various widely-separated parts of Quebec province.

Tighter Laws Planned

OTTAWA (UPI)—Justice Minister Lucien Cardin said Thursday the government is working on legislation to "tighten up" and "fill the holes" in federal bankruptcy laws. (See also Page 3.)

Cardin said a complete re-vamping of the Bankruptcy Act is being carried out, but it could take "as long as a year to complete."

Cardin denied reports the federal government has not been co-operating in the stranger-than-fiction cases in Quebec where police report as many as 12 would-be witnesses in fraudulent bankruptcy cases have been murdered.

There has been "a lot of loose talk," said Cardin.

Someone's Aiming At You, Mr. Bond

MOSCOW (Reuters)—James Bond will soon be appearing in Moscow for the first time as the villain in a Russian spy novel.

Special Agent 007's opponent will be Russian spy-hero Avvakum Zakhov, the creation of writer Andrei Gulyashki. They will cross swords in Bulgaria in Gulyashki's next novel.

Gulyashki told the newspaper, Literary Gazette that the adventure novel should serve as "a guide for socialist ideas and help to educate young people."

Bond is unlikely to be presented as the suave lady-killer of the Ian Fleming novels.

Last week the Soviet Communist newspaper denounced him as a rascal, a sadist, and the successor of Nazi war criminals.

Not Soft Enough?

JODRELL BANK, England (AP)—The director of Britain's giant telescope said early today all the evidence pointed to Russia's Luna-7 moon rocket having destroyed itself on hitting the moon.

Sir Bernard Lovell, the director, said radio signals from the moon rocket ceased at 3:08:27 p.m. PDT Thursday.

"It is impossible to do more than guess at what, if anything, has gone wrong. But our assumption was that the Russians intended to make a soft landing of instruments on the lunar surface," he said.

"On that assumption the final stages of firing the retro-rockets were only partially successful," Sir Bernard added.

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union maintained silence early today two hours after the unmanned satellite Luna-7 was supposed to land on the moon.

LBJ Goes To Hospital

Talks Deadlocked

Rhodesia Given Warnings By U.S., Bonn

LONDON (AP)—Prime Ministers Harold Wilson and Ian Smith failed Thursday to break the deadlocked British-Rhodesian negotiations over the white-ruled colony's renewed threats to seize independence.

"If tomorrow's meeting is fruitless too," one member of the British cabinet said, "we shall have to decide whether there is any point in going on."

Before the meeting began Thursday, the U.S. and West German governments intervened in the dispute with the aim of heading Smith off his much-threatened course of proclaiming Rhodesia's independence without British consent.

DELIVERS WARNING

The American charge d'affaires in London, Philip H. Kaiser, delivered a warning from the U.S. government telling Smith that any breakaway will not be recognized by Washington.

West Germany's ambassador to Britain, Herbert Blankenhorn, acted in similar fashion.

BACKING BRITAIN

The Americans and West Germans, like other Allied and Commonwealth countries, were reinforcing solemn British warnings to Smith that any grab at independence would be treated as an act of rebellion.

Thus a solid front of leading powers, representing just about all the continents, built up against Smith and the 220,000 white Rhodesians he hopes to lead to statehood. Some 4,000,000 colored Rhodesians are almost without political power.

TOLD OF DIFFICULTIES

As an example of the sort of difficulties the white Rhodesians would encounter after a unilateral declaration of independence, Britain advised Smith within the last two days that Rhodesian passports would have no validity in countries which decline to recognize the statehood he would claim.

If the 49-year-old Rhodesian leader was impressed by this display of opposition he gave no sign of it when he faced Wilson.

Stiffest Round Of Heckling Given John D

John D in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—Conservative Leader Diefenbaker took his "integrity in government" message before nearly 6,000 people in a jazzy Winnipeg rally Thursday night and ran into the stiffest round of heckling since his campaign began.

As the voices of young people shot down from the galleries, Mr. Diefenbaker told his audience they were facing their last chance to decide the future of Canada. "We must clean up the mess. We will restore honesty to government."

AUDITORIUMS PACKED

The 5,000-seat auditorium was filled for the 70-year-old party leader, and the doorways were packed with standing listeners. An 800-seat adjoining auditorium was nearly filled.

Mr. Diefenbaker alternately tried with, and ignored, the

Liberals' Foes 'Gloom-Talkers'

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson accused his opponents in the Nov. 8 federal election Thursday night of trying to make Canadians believe that nearly everything has gone wrong in the country.

"I get kind of impatient with them," he said at a Liberal rally here. "People who talk like that are frustrated; they're desperate. There's something wrong with them. . . . Too many people are singing Rescue the Perishing. They should be singing Count Your Blessings."

Mr. Pearson did not name Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker as the target for his remarks. He implied that's who he had in mind in saying that the gloom-talkers increased at election time, especially if they are in opposition and trying to get in office.

'Historical Relic' Stings NATO

NEW YORK (CP)—The political committee of the NATO parliamentarians' conference has refused to approve a French-prepared report criticizing the United States and implying that the Atlantic alliance is a "historical relic" rather than a real political entity. It was learned Thursday night.

The report, prepared by M. Boscher, head of the French delegation, comes up today for study at the plenary session of the 15-nation conference which opened Monday.

STUDY REPORTS

Thursday was taken up with the study of such committee reports as that of the cultural affairs and information committee, the special committee on developing NATO countries, the scientific and technical committee, the military committee and the economic committee.

The report by Boscher, rapporteur of the political committee, was prefaced with: "The committee does not approve the report but, in order to allow freedom of expression and debate in plenary session, has permitted the report to go forward."

But the president was reported planning to wait for another two weeks before making an official announcement in a radio-television address to the nation.

Stock Fraud

Ontario Charges Windfall Couple

By KEN SMITH

Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—George and Viola MacMillan, the couple with a golden touch in the mining business, were charged Thursday with fraud in connection with last year's frenzy over Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd.—one of their efforts that went sour.

Charges against other persons were indicated by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario, although he did not identify them immediately.

Two fraud charges, each carrying a maximum penalty of 10 years, were laid against each of the MacMillans shortly after the government released the report of a royal commission that was appointed to find out why Windfall shares rose to $3.60 from 56 cents in hectic, rumor-fueled trading in July, 1964, and then collapsed to 80 cents.

Mr. Wishart said the MacMillans were in Nevada, but will return to Canada Friday, Oct. 15, and surrender.

The commission report, prepared by Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal, made no recommendation about the MacMillans but sections of his detailed study came down harshly on the veteran mining couple.

The report also lashed out at John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission who was suspended for a possible conflict of interest over Windfall and later resigned.

It was suggested some members of the brokerage community regard the Toronto Stock Exchange as a gaming club existing for their personal gain and recommended that if the exchange can't keep its own clean an outside body be appointed to do so.

It called for a tougher securities commission, with more money, staff and a clear-cut set of regulations, and suggested

But Patrick Predicts Playoffs

LA Means Last Again

By JIM TAYLOR

EDMONTON—Spend a while watching Los Angeles Blades and you come away certain that LA stands for last again.

Lynn Patrick doesn't think so, but the man is brutally honest, and he's willing to admit there is a chance.

Patrick knows all about last place. It was his personal property when he was with Boston Bruins, who trailed the National Hockey League for the past five years. Somehow the man has retained a sense of humor, and he winces only slightly when he discusses the Blades' chances in the Western Hockey League.

"We've lost four straight in training camp, once to the Canadian National team (5-2). In the three games against San Francisco we've given up 24 goals.

NO MORE HELP

"We've got no more help coming from Chicago. Our goaltending has been bad and our defence scares me. I've got a couple of defencemen more dangerous to us when they've got the puck than when they haven't."

"And six of our first eight games are on the road against clubs in the American Hockey League. Boston bad? At times this looks worse than Boston."

JUST PLAYOFFS

But Patrick, while admitting he must go all the way with what he's got now, still thinks that he has a club that can make the playoffs. Not first or second but the playoffs.

"Look, we lost Gordie Haworth, Stan Maxwell, Lloyd Haddon, Jack Evans and Jack McCarten from last year's club," he said. "But I can't say we're weaker. I let them go because I knew we had to be better than that."

WANTS MONEY

"I think Jerry Toppazzini will be here. He just wants the money he got last year in Pittsburgh and I'm not about to give it to him. It's more than I was paying him when he was in Boston. He'll be here, and he'll help."

Patrick says he's not worried about his forwards, although they haven't looked good.

LOTS OF GOALS

He's got Willie O'Ree (38 goals last year), Brian Smith (35), Norm Johnson (26), Leo Labine (16), Gord Veprava (19), Warren Hynes (18), and handyman Marc Boileau.

This season he's added another Schmutz, right-winger Bobby and left-winger Bill Orban from Saskatoon Juniors. Patrick says both of them, and particularly Schmutz, look like they can make it.

SHOWN NOTHING

"I need another centre to go with Johnson, Veprava and Hynes," Patrick said. "Cliff Pennington hasn't shown me anything. And most of all I need a couple of defencemen."

Patrick's defence at the moment is enough to give a goalkeeper acute shell shock. Only Howie Young and Jack Hendrickson of the holdovers look capable of helping. Bobby Wilson, who came in an off-season trade with Buffalo, will help, says Patrick. Camille Bejar and Harley Hodgson aren't playing as though they will.

Cowering fearfully behind this stalwart group through most of the exhibitions has been Jack Norris, who finished last season with Boston.

"I've got to believe he's a good goaltender, Patrick sighs. "But he hasn't looked like it yet."

Backing up Norris is Wayne Dol, a highly-regarded prospect from Estevan who was all-star in the Saskatchewan Junior League last season. But right

Patterson Returns To Cats

HAMILTON (CP)—End Hal Patterson, 32, who retired from professional football last July, will rejoin Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference for the remainder of their schedule.

He isn't expected to play in Monday's EFC tilt here against Ottawa Rough Riders, but he will finish the season with Hamilton and participate in the playoffs.

Hamilton team is weak at quarterback and injuries to fullback Art Baker and middle linebacker Herb Paterra have not helped. And there has been no adequate replacement for Patterson at left offensive end. Bobby Kuntz, a strong two-way player who also quit football this summer, has agreed to return to fill the vacancy left by Paterra on defence.

now he is a prospect. Nothing more.

And this is the club Patrick must take into Los Angeles, a town that has a team in the world series and a distressing tendency to think big league or nothing.

"We'll get by," Patrick says. "We won't be a powerhouse, but we will be in the playoffs."

But Lynn Patrick, honest to the end, didn't say whom he intended to beat.

No Such Deal

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—General manager Hap Emms of Boston Bruins Wednesday night denied he had agreed to trade four members of his National Hockey League club for two members of a Western Hockey League club.

Coach Bud Poole of San Francisco Seals said in Edmonton earlier Wednesday that a member of his club—George Swarbrick, rookie of the year in the WHL last season—had been sent to the Bruins' training camp here as the first player involved in a six-man player trade.

Poole said his club would receive four players from the Bruins in exchange for Swarbrick and a second San Francisco player if Swarbrick can make the regular Boston line-up.

Emms said Swarbrick, 24, is expected to join the Bruins here today, but "there's no such deal . . . Swarbrick is coming in here on a loan basis. If he doesn't make the Bruins, then he's going back to San Francisco."

U.S. and British Golf Teams Split Matches in Ryder Cup

SOUTHPORT, England (AP)—Pro golfers from the United States and Britain played to a 4-4 deadlock Thursday in the opening matches of the biennial Ryder Cup tournament.

Thursday's matches were alternate-shot foursomes, each team shooting one ball over the par 73 Royal Birkdale layout.

Friday, the same teams will play eight four-ball foursomes and the competition closes on Saturday with 16 man-to-man duels.

Each side won two matches in the morning and two after lunch.

BIG CHANGE

Probably never in the history of this competition has there been a greater change in a team's play than in that of Americans Arnold Palmer and Dave Marr.

In the morning round against Dave Thomas and George Will, the Americans lost five of the first seven holes and were defeated 6 and 5. In the afternoon, the Americans defeated the same British pair by the same margin.

Julius Boros and Tony Lema contributed a pair of points to the U.S. total. In the morning round they squeezed past Lionel Platts and Peter Butler, 1 and 2. After lunch they crushed Jimmy Martin and Jimmy Hitecock 5 and 4.

Billy Casper and Gene Littler won in the morning but lost in the afternoon to Christy O'Connor and Peter Allis, possibly the best British pair of the day, 2 and 1. Before lunch, the two California's mastered Bernie Hunt and Neil Coles, also 2 and 1.

Ken Venturi and Don January lost both their outings. In the morning they bowed to O'Connor and Allis, 5 and 4, and in the afternoon they dropped a 3 and 2 verdict to Hunt and Coles.

Esquimalt Stars Open Season

Action in the Esquimalt and District Hockey League gets underway tonight at Esquimalt Municipal Centre with the annual all-star game, scheduled to start at 8:15.

University of Victoria Vikings, who finished on top in scheduled league play, will face a team drawn from the other three clubs—Navy, Army and Pontiac Chiefs.

Each of the three clubs will provide a forward line for the all-stars, who will also have three goalkeepers and six defencemen.

High Jump Champ Brumel Breaks Leg

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet doctors said Thursday they will not know for three days if Valery Brumel, world record holder in the high jump, will be able to compete again following a double fracture of his right knee in a motorcycle accident Wednesday.

The 23-year-old student, winner of the gold medal in his pet event at the Tokyo Olympics, suffered the injury when the motorcycle on which he was riding home with a friend skidded. Brumel fell to the street and the machine toppled over on him.

WORLD RECORD

He set the world mark of seven feet, 5 1/2 inches in Moscow in July, 1963.

Brumel was operated upon during the night. Doctors said he suffered "complicated fractures" of two bones in the joint.

The doctors said the operation was a success but added it would take at least six months for the fractures to heal.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Ducks, geese, pheasants and quail come in season this Thanksgiving weekend and band-tailed pigeons go out of season Monday.

Following mid-week rains and windstorms this weekend could see the best period of hunting yet this season.

Dry weather has hampered both access and hunting success so far this hunting season.

Deer and elk are both in season for bucks and bulls only all over Vancouver Island and to date success has been below that of last year. Two elk came out of Nanaimo River area last weekend, one bull and the other a cow that had been wounded and was found suffering by a separate group of hunters, who shot it and turned it over to game branch officials.

Be Seen—Be Safe

Is the slogan for the fourth annual Hunter Safety Week which starts Saturday and continues until Oct. 16. B.C. Wildlife Federation president Jim Murray tells hunters that "while many factors contribute to hunting accidents, high visibility in the woods is still the major safety factor, and the wearing of some readily visible color while hunting is a simple, positive way in which every hunter can contribute to firearms safety."

The recent rains should help both salt and freshwater fishing, except there may be a period of a day or so of waiting while swollen rivers and estuaries get back to normal and the mud settles.

The rain was badly needed for rivers that were almost dry, millions of salmon that waited to get up them, forests that were parched.

For the first time in memory Canada's highest waterfall, Della Falls at Great Central Lake, had run dry.

Reports on trout fishing are all good from the lakes. Prospect Lake is providing some of the Island's best dry and greased line fishing, just before dark, with the trout gobbling the hatching midges and taking anything from rather well worn hare's ear flies to bi-visible and small dry flies.

Lower Campbell is good for trollers and so is Cowichan Lake, which was badly hit by the mid-week storm which sent the water rising nearly two feet. Great Central is producing well and Skutz Falls area of Cowichan River is providing great sport.

Now is the time to go after the cutthroat in the river estuaries and off the beaches near river mouths.

The coho are drawing in ever closer to river mouths, but there are still some to be taken off Sooke and Bruchie Ledges.

Winter springs have arrived off Oak Bay, right inside the Breakwater and off Cattle Point, and now is the time to start looking for them in Beecher Bay.

This is the weekend of the big three-day coho derby at Cowichan Bay and some anglers, including Chris Hesketh, who hooked a seal as well as several coho this week, have been getting good catches on bucketful flies.

Jackies and cohos are now being caught in the bigger rivers by spin casters.

Coho fishing off Nanaimo has been reported as hot. Claytons, French Creek and Qualicum Beach are all giving up coho, but fishing seems to be slackening off. At Qualicum only guide boats will be available for rent this weekend. The storm forced boathouses to pull their rental boats up, in a hurry.

This is about the last chance to fish Alberni Inlet and remember the Inlet is closed until you round Polly Point. Rain muddied up the Inlet, but it should be clear and maybe hot fishing for the weekend.

For those who like to enjoy their winter fishing indoors Ted Davies has started his annual fly tying and fly fishing night school course at Oak Bay Senior High School draughting room, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday nights, and he has room for a few more enthusiasts. Helping him will be fishing experts Les Leacock and Bill Moonsh. Cost is $15 for 15 lessons.

Riders Dominate Statistics Race

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders players hold down three top spots in individual Western Football Conference statistics released Thursday by statistician Bill Hawrylak.

Saskatchewan fullback George Reed has rushed for 1,191 yards in 203 carries. Calgary Stampeder fullback Lovell Coleman, who had played one game fewer than Reed when the statistics were drawn up, carried top passing quarterback with 2,137 yards on 133 completions out of 270 attempts.

Saskatchewan Rough riders pivot Ron Lancaster is second with 2,068 yards gained on 132 completions in 240 throws.

Kapp and Lancaster both have thrown 11 touchdown passes. Ed Ulmer of Bombers has a slight lead in punt rating race. He has an average of 43.4 yards on 95 punts. Edmonton flanker Randy Kerbow is second with a 42.8 average on 89 punts.

Tonight's Calgary at Toronto game may be seen over channel 8 at 8 p.m. Saturday Lions at Edmonton over channel 2 at 8 p.m., according to network announcements.

the ball 158 times for 1,035 yards and second place in the rushing race.

Roughriders flanker Hugh Campbell heads the pass-catching race with 1,102 yards gained on 60 receptions. End Tommy Joe Coffey of Edmonton Eskimos also has caught 60 passes, gaining 1,024 yards.

Halfback Gene Wasiuk of Saskatchewan is the best punt-return man with 376 yards on 59 returns. Winnipeg Blue Bombers Nick Wozny is second in the punt-return category with 306 yards on 49 returns.

Joe Kapp of B.C. Lions is the Bombers back Dave Rainey is the kickoff-return leader with 474 yards on 16 carries.

New Brentwood Expansion At Midway Mark

Brentwood College, the school that died and was resurrected by its Old Boys, is midway through a $250,000 expansion program.

Capped by a $136,000 dormitory, the project will be complete by February, Headmaster David D. MacKenzie said Thursday.

NEW ERA

It will open a new era in the life of the boys' school at Mill Bay which was closed by fire from 1948 to 1961.

Brentwood College was founded in Victoria in 1923 by a group of businessmen. Its 30 students lived in Brentwood House at University Street.

1947 FIRE

Fire struck in 1947, and the school closed a little more than a year later.

But in 1960 a group of alumni, or Old Boys, formed an association that succeeded in re-opening and relocating the school at Mill Bay a year later.

FUND A SUCCESS

A fund drive that opened last June quickly garnered $250,000 from individuals and businesses. The money is being spent on a $50,000 science block, the residence and a playing field, plus expansion of existing facilities. Despite construction of the 55-bed residence, the school will expand its capacity of 178 boys by only a dozen, said Mr. MacKenzie.

"The project is to give us more facilities, rather than more students," he said.

'Brinker' Movie Success

UNION BAY — The first performance of Child's Own Theatre held in Union Bay Community Hall recently was enjoyed by 50 children. The full-length film shown was a Walt Disney production of Hans Brinker, or The Silver Skates.

The children were first shown a copy of the book, which is in the Basic Collection at the Union Bay Branch of the Vancouver Island Regional Library. They looked at the book's illustrations, talked about Holland and its people, and formed a clear idea of the story's setting before the show began.

Child's Own Theatre is another project which the Community Club is including in its busy schedule of fall and winter activities. The 1965-66 edition of this Festival of International Films for Children brings to children between the ages of 5 and 12 the very best in children's films from eight countries, and will run in this district every second week until the middle of April.

Lions Collect $17,500 For Housing Project

GANGES — A community drive for $17,500, representing about 10 per cent of the initial cost for building a low-cost housing project for elderly Gulf Islands citizens, has reached its objective.

Following government approval of final plans, tenders will be called by Salt Spring Lions Club Pioneer Village Society, organizers of the project.

Twenty-two units will be erected on two-acre site, centrally located in Ganges, and will be known as Gulf Islands Pioneer Village. James White of Nanaimo is architect in charge.

CUMBERLAND — A Cumberland resident since 1928, Mrs. Rosina Frew, recently celebrated her 89th birthday, recalling old memories and experiences.

Coming to Canada in 1907 the Frew family took up residence in Michellie, in the Crow's Nest Pass area, but disaster soon struck them. The big fire at Fernie caused the evacuation of all the families in the area and the Frews settled in Frank. In 1928 they moved to Cumberland and have remained here ever since.

Tragedy struck the family a second time when in 1942, Mr. Frew was killed in a mining accident.

Mrs. Frew has two sons, four daughters, 19 grandchildren, 39 great-grandchildren and three great-great grandchildren. She now resides with her daughter, Mrs. Ed Hunden.

FULFORD — Miss Ronda Lee reported the arrival of the first snow birds on Salt Spring Island. The snow bird is a finch, and partly white. The snow hunting is also sometimes seen here.

CHEMUNUS — A good turnout of membership of the women's division Mount Brenton Golf Club competed for the last of six Crown Zellerbach spoons for the season. Mrs. Robert Jansch was the low-net winner and Mrs. W. O. Wilson was runner-up. In the bronze division "hidden-holes" competition, Mrs. J. Neild was winner. This week's competition will be the annual turkey shoot.

Work Bee Saturday For Legion

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Building committee chairman Andy Simard, reported at this week's meeting of the Malahat branch of the Royal Canadian Legion that the 10 support beams for the new Legion hall have been placed in position.

The beams are to be secured at a working bee Saturday. Legionnaires recently held a bee to construct the 10 beams under the supervision of B.C. Plywood Manufacturers Association.

The hall, which was partially completed last year, collapsed under heavy snow New Year's Day, and building experts found the beams had not been built strong enough to support the extra weight.

Plans were made to hold the annual Poppy Campaign, Nov. 6 and a turkey draw Dec. 10. Tentative plans for an anniversary dance Nov. 27, to celebrate the Legion's 48th birthday, were discussed.

The ladies' auxiliary to the Legion is planning two coffee parties to raise money for the furnishings in the new building. The first party will be held at the home of Mrs. John Storoschuk, Oct. 14, and the second at the home of Mrs. Pat Mason, Nov. 28.

South of Duncan

Recreation Group In Making

COWICHAN STATION — Formation of an operating recreation commission for the unorganized territory south of Duncan, came one step closer at a public meeting, Wednesday night at the Cowichan Station Elementary School.

About 20 people representing various parts of the territory attended the meeting. Election of an executive will be held later.

QUAIFE CHAIRMAN

James Quaife was appointed temporary chairman, to be assisted in formation of the commission by Gerry Heber, Roger Hilliard, Mrs. L. F. Westerman, Mrs. R. J. Klettke and Mrs. W. L. Hill.

The meeting decided to name the new organization the South Cowichan Recreation Commission until a more appropriate name can be found.

THREE DISTRICT

Three districts in the unorganized area already have recreation commissions — Mill Bay, Shawinigan Lake and Glenora.

The new commission will co-ordinate recreational needs in the following areas: Cobble Hill, Cowichan Station, Cowichan Bay, Fairbridge and Cherry Point.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Gordon Pynn, regional consultant for Vancouver Island community programs.

EIGHTY GROUPS

"I started in this job 10 years ago, when there were 17 or 18 recreation commissions on Vancouver Island. Today there are 80 on the island," he said.

He explained the aims and purposes of his branch, and outlined services offered, programs dealing with adult education, fitness, amateur sports and drama.

NO STANDARD

He said, "There is no standard form to setting up a recreation commission. The branch has a guide available, but it has a very broad program."

He said the main items needed in forming a successful recreation commission are leadership, facilities and money. "The latter two are not hard to get once you have the right leadership and enthusiasm of the members."

CANNOT JOIN

A suggestion was made that the unorganized territory join the North Cowichan Recreation Commission rather than form one of its own.

Mr. Pynn said under present legislation "unorganized territories and organized areas cannot join together. The future advent of regional districts will permit this."

HESITATION

The meeting at first expressed hesitation to volunteer their respective districts' services to the recreation commission until a larger turnout of the public attended a future meeting.

However, organizer Quaife said from the questions and interest shown, it is safe to say the area wants a recreation commission. "I don't want to put off its formation any longer. The commission should have been formed 10 years ago."

CAN SEE NEED

He stressed the need for people "who aren't afraid to work, and who can see a need for future recreational facilities."

"I will tell you the same thing I told the Teen Town group I organized last year. The possibilities of the organization are endless. You can stretch your imagination as far as you like."

"Hazard House" Will Be Shown

Departmental equipment will be on display from 10 a.m. until noon at the hall at 716 Goldstream. There will be refreshments.

$2,000,000 Expansion Plan

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) —

Work will start this fall on an extension to the Nanaimo laboratory of the fisheries research board, Fisheries Minister Robichaud said here Thursday.

Mr. Robichaud said close to

$2,000,000 would be spent to improve research facilities at Nanaimo.

Initial work would cost $275,000—for the reclamation of three acres of waterfront and construction of a wharf and access road.

Mr. Robichaud said work should start early in 1966 on the $1,500,000 extension to the laboratory itself. It would open in 1967.

The minister also said that a meeting would be held next week in Washington to discuss the question of interception of B.C.-bound salmon by U.S. fishermen in southeast Alaskan waters.

"It is my hope that a mutually satisfactory solution will be reached as a result of these discussions," he said.

Freedomites 'at Peace'

Writer Credits Book With Aiding Sect

NANAIMO—There's a changed attitude among Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, author Simma Holt of Vancouver told the local chapter of the B.C. Registered Nurses' Association here Thursday night.

She said the change is the result of many things, but the Doukhobors are at peace now.

"For years they have been led by evil leaders and they have been exploited for their money."

THREE FACTORS

Mrs. Holt named three factors mainly responsible for the change—improved treatment in prison, a change in attitude of parole officers, and the clincher in Mrs. Holt's opinion, her book on Doukhobor life, Terror in the Name of God.

For the first time, she said, Doukhobors are working in prison, and 74 out of 78 inmates are going to school, some even talking of university.

"For the first time, leaders with their collections for money are meeting opposition."

Mrs. Holt saw hope for the Doukhobors in the young.

HELP CHILDREN

"I wrote my book to help the young. Maybe the children will lead the old," she added.

On Thursday, Terror in the Name of God came out on bookshelves in the U.S. for the first time in an up-to-date edition.

More than 12,000 copies have been sold in Canada and if it proves an equal success in the States, Mrs. Holt says she will be able to afford to write another book.

Post Office To Have More Boxes

COURTENAY—With the announcement that Courtenay post office will have an additional 520 boxes added to the lobby, people on the waiting list for this service will be happier.

The last expansion of post office boxes was in March 1962, when 354 were added.

Only 50 persons are on the waiting list now, Postmaster Bill Bailey said, but the rapid expansion of the population will need the greater capacity in the near future.

TWO WEEKS

Work will commence immediately by George Cooper Construction and should be completed within two weeks. New doors will also be added to the entry.

Acoustic tiling of the ceiling to lower the level of noise has already been completed.

Cumberland post office has also received some minor face lifting with the removal of a small garden area and iron fence around the front of the building. The fence was removed and the entire area from the curb to the post office steps has been cemented. New handles have been added to the outside doors and the interior painted.

Mishap Killed Man Inquest Decides

CHEMAMUS — Frank Eastwood, 58, of Chemainus, died at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria, on Sept. 23, as the result of extensive injuries sustained when heavy timbers fell on him from a loading machine, a coroner's jury decided here Thursday night.

The jury met in the Chemainus fire hall under direction of deputy coroner Thomas Lines of Duncan.

Mr. Eastwood was injured Sept. 22 while working as a swamper at the Chemainus Sawmill of MacMillan Bloedel & Powell River Ltd.

He was working on a loading machine when a heavy timber fell on him from a height of about 10 feet.

Nanaimo Passes Bus Project, Five-Year Plan

NANAIMO—City taxpayers Thursday approved a $1,250,000 five-year capital improvement bylaw and a $55,000 bus purchase referendum.

In all 2,279 taxpayers voted, 36.8 per cent of those eligible. They passed the bylaw with a 71.04 per cent majority, 1,590 to 648. They passed the referendum with a 72.4 per cent majority, 1,623 to 618.

WILL CARRY ON

"You've now given us the go-ahead and confidence we needed," said Mayor Pete Maffeo.

"We will now carry out the tasks you have given us to do."

Largest of the tasks is the $608,000 improvement plan for streets throughout the entire city. Another $125,000 will go towards a new firehall and fire-fighting equipment.

PARK COMPLEX

A recreation complex at Bowen Park will cost $152,000 of which the city can obtain $40,000 on a grant from senior governments.

Another $78,000 will be used to extend the police station and magistrate's court.

ARENA PROJECT

An amount of $20,100 will be used for a renovation program of $59,750 for the Civic Arena. Council already has earmarked $39,650 of it.

Other projects include completion of the new city works yard, a caretaker's building at the cemetery, provision of automatic signals at every railroad crossing and renewal of downtown ornamental street lighting.

FOR NEW BUSES

The bus bylaw will allow city council to borrow up to $55,000 for buying new buses for Nanaimo Transit Ltd.

The transit company will repay the loan annually, including interest charges.

Two New Subdivisions

Townsite Gets Added Houses

VANCOUVER (CP) — Work has started on two new housing subdivisions at Gold River on Vancouver Island, the Tahalis Company announced Thursday.

The newly-incorporated municipality is being built primarily to provide urban living facilities for employees of the company's Gold River logging division and $60,000,000 pulp mill now being built.

The first Gold River subdivision of 45 houses is nearing completion. Residents, the first at the new townsite, are scheduled to move in this month.

The two additional subdivisions comprise 42 homes—20 being built by A & B Construction Company Ltd. of Nanaimo and 22 by Dawson Housing Development Ltd. of Vancouver.

More Uniformity

Island Candidates Turn Attention To Education

NANAIMO—Walter Matthews, a former MP seeking re-election on the Progressive Conservative ticket for Nanaimo-Cowichan, said he would renew his effort to establish a uniform education program for schools and universities for Canada.

The meeting was held in the Tally-Ho Motor Lodge and was sponsored by the Nanaimo and District Teachers' Association. All four candidates attended.

Mr. Matthews said he supported the removal of the 11 per cent tax on building materials.

Liberal candidate Douglas Greer said, as far as he knew, his party has no intention of removing it.

New Democratic Party candidate Colin Cameron, member in the last Parliament, said he favored close examination of the defence budget to search for more money for education.

He also complained that there is only one advanced technical institute in B.C.

"We're failing badly," he said.

He said it was imperative that we instruct adequately those who take their places in production.

"We have to open the doors of the minds of all students," he said. "We should seek to change the present values of society to produce men and women of integrity, intelligence, stature and awareness."

Social Credit candidate Lyle Wilkinson told the meeting Canada's resources lie in youth.

He favors scholarships, loans and bursaries for students but not doing away with tuition fees.

"Social credit will create a society where what is now impossible is made possible," he said.

Mr. Greer sees the election centred around four issues, two of which are national unity and co-operative federalism.

The other two, he said, are concerned with Parliament riding itself of its tarnished image and the voters looking at the Liberal, his party's, record and asking if the government is entitled to re-election.

Insulators Shot

Power Failure Hunters' Fault

CAMPBELL RIVER—Hunters, not the storm, have been blamed for a power failure here Monday.

B.C. Hydro authorities say insulators were shot off a pole by rifle fire and a power line was severed.

This shorted against another wire and blew fuses, causing a blackout at Forbes Landing, Elk River Timber's Camp 8 and on the Campbell River TV antenna.

B.C. Wildlife Federation recently announced establishment of a reward fund for information leading to conviction of hunters who wantonly destroy property.

Last year careless hunters caused a shutdown at Elk Falls Pulp and Paper Mill when they destroyed insulators and caused a power failure to pumps which supplied water to the huge mill.

Middle-of-the-road lunchers on Chesterfield Street

Lunch on the Road

DUNCAN — Lunch on the front porch is nothing new. But when the house is parked in the middle of the road, at least it's different.

It happened Thursday when David Gamble, Roy Brooks and Peter Hansen of W. O. Brown Ltd. took their lunch break in the middle of Chesterfield Street near the Duncan B.C. Forest Service nursery. Their 16-ton load had almost reached its destination and a few hours later it was back on solid ground.

Fellow of Instrument Society

Ladysmith Man Honored

CROFTON — John J. Garey of the Crofton Pulp & Paper Division of B.C. Forest Products Ltd., has been made a Fellow of the Instrument Society of America.

The honor was bestowed on the Ladysmith man at the 20th annual conference of the society in Los Angeles this week.

The society has 17,000 members throughout the U.S. and Canada and has overseas affiliates. Members are elevated to the status of Fellow for outstanding engineering and scientific attainments.

Mr. Garey is the second Canadian to receive the honor and the first member engaged in the pulp and paper industry.

He joined B.C. Forest Products in 1956 and participated in the preliminary planning of the Crofton operation which began production in December, 1957.

In addition to receiving the status of Fellow, Mr. Garey is director-elect of the pulp and paper division of the society.

No Candidates For Socialists

The Socialist Party of Canada won't be running candidates in Greater Victoria for the Nov. 8 federal election, spokesman Larry Tiekner announced Thursday.

He added that the Victoria local will distribute literature in the next month, and will begin at Saturday's speech by Dr. Linus Pauling at the University of Victoria.

Fourth Body Found

SHERBROOKE, Que. (AP) — Quebec Provincial Police, looking for victims of an underworld purge, Thursday discovered a quicklime-covered body at the side of a secondary road 45 miles north of Sherbrooke.

The discovery brings to four the number of underworld victims unearthed so far by investigators.

The other three victims were found in woods near St. Gilles, 20 miles south of Quebec City. Claude Wagner, Quebec justice minister, said at a press conference in Montreal Monday that the bodies were those of men slain by racketeers anxious to stop their talking to authorities about such activities as fraudulent bankruptcies and arson.

BIG RING

The murders, he said, were being forced by his department's investigation into a giant arson and fraudulent bankruptcy ring which is said to be one of the biggest ever to operate in Canada and to have international connections.

The Quebec justice department later identified the body as that of Paul Chandonnet, a 38-year-old Sherbrooke shopowner.

The justice minister said Chandonnet played an active part in an arson and false bankruptcy ring and was to have been called as a witness in arson cases which now are before the courts.

SEARCH CONTINUES

Mr. Chandonnet, formerly of Quebec City, was a business associate of Moise Darabaner, a 43-year-old Quebec City businessman who now is before the courts charged with arson, fraud and conspiracy to commit arson and fraud.

The search for bodies continues in various widely-separated parts of Quebec province.

Tighter Laws Planned

OTTAWA (UPI) — Justice Minister Lucien Cardin said Thursday the government is working on legislation to "tighten up" and "fill the holes" in federal bankruptcy laws. (See also Page 3.)

Cardin said a complete re-vamping of the Bankruptcy Act is being carried out, but it could take "as long as a year to complete."

Cardin denied reports the federal government has not been co-operating in the stranger-than-fiction cases in Quebec where police report as many as 12 would-be witnesses in fraudulent bankruptcy cases have been murdered.

There has been "a lot of loose talk," said Cardin.

Someone's Aiming At You, Mr. Bond

MOSCOW (Reuters) — James Bond will soon be appearing in Moscow for the first time as the villain in a Russian spy novel.

Special Agent 007's opponent will be Russian spy-hero Avvakum Zakhov, the creation of writer Andrei Gulyashki. They will cross swords in Gulyashki's next novel. Gulyashki told the newspaper Literary Gazette that the adventure novel should serve as "a guide for socialist ideas and help to educate young people."

Bond is unlikely to be presented as the suave lady-killer of the Ian Fleming novels.

Last week the Soviet Communist newspaper denounced him as a rapist, a sadist, and the successor of Nazi war criminals.

Not Soft Enough?

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — The director of Britain's giant telescope said early today all the evidence pointed to Russia's Luna-7 moon rocket having destroyed itself on hitting the moon.

Sir Bernard Lovell, the director, said radio signals from the moon rocket ceased at 3:08:27 p.m. PDT Thursday.

"It is impossible to do more than guess at what, if anything, has gone wrong. But our assumption was that the Russians intended to make a soft landing of instruments on the lunar surface," he said.

"On that assumption the final stages of firing the retro-rockets were only partially successful," Sir Bernard added.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union maintained silence early today two hours after the unmanned satellite Luna-7 was supposed to land on the moon.

'Historical Relic' Stings NATO

NEW YORK (UPI) — The political committee of the NATO parliamentarians' conference has refused to approve a French-prepared report criticizing the United States and implying that the Atlantic alliance is a "historical relic rather than a real political entity," it was learned Thursday night.

The report, prepared by M. Boscher, head of the French delegation, comes up today for study at the plenary session of the 15-nation conference which opened Monday.

STUDY REPORTS

Thursday was taken up with the study of such committee reports as that of the cultural affairs and information committee, the special committee on developing NATO countries, the scientific and technical committee, the military committee and the economic committee.

The report by Boscher, rapporteur of the political committee, was prefaced with "The committee does not approve the report but, in order to allow freedom of expression and debate in plenary session, has permitted the report to go forward."

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle, 75, has decided that he will seek re-election Dec. 5. It was reported today in three Paris newspapers.

He was reported not planning to serve out another full seven-year presidential term, however.

But the president was reported planning to wait for another two weeks before making an official announcement in a radio-television address to the nation.

Ontario Charges Windfall Couple

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP) — George and Viola MacMillan, the couple with a golden touch in the mining business, were charged Thursday with fraud in connection with last year's frenzy over Windfall Oil and Mines Ltd. — one of their efforts that went sour.

Charges against other persons were indicated by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario, although he did not identify them immediately.

Two fraud charges, each carrying a maximum penalty of 10 years, were laid against each of the MacMillans shortly after the government released the report of a royal commission that was appointed to find out why Windfall shares rose to $5.68 from 56 cents in hectic, rumor-fueled trading in July, 1964, and then collapsed to 80 cents.

Mr. Wishart said the MacMillans were in Nevada, but will return to Canada Friday, Oct. 15, and surrender.

The commission report, prepared by Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Court of Appeal, made no recommendation about the MacMillans but sections of his detailed study came down harshly on the veteran mining couple.

The report also lashed out at John Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission who was suspended for a possible conflict of interest over Windfall and later resigned.

It was suggested some members of the brokerage community regard the Toronto Stock Exchange as a gaming club existing for their personal gain and recommending that if the exchange can't keep its own nest clean an outside body be appointed to do so.

It called for a tougher securities commission, with more money, staff and a clear-cut set of regulations, and suggested

RHODESIA GIVEN WARNING

LONDON (AP) — Prime Ministers Harold Wilson and Ian Smith failed Thursday to break the deadlocked British-Rhodesian negotiations over the white-ruled colony's renewed threats to seize independence.

"If tomorrow's meeting is fruitless too," one member of the British cabinet said, "we shall have to decide whether there is any point in going on."

Before the meeting began Thursday, the U.S. and West German governments intervened in the dispute with the aim of heading Smith off his much-threatened course of proclaiming Rhodesia's independence without British consent.

DELIVERS WARNING

The American charge d'affaires in London, Philip H. Kaiser, delivered a warning from the U.S. government telling Smith that any breakaway will not be recognized by Washington.

West Germany's ambassador to Britain, Herbert Blankenhorn, acted in similar fashion.

BACKING BRITAIN

The Americans and West Germans, like other Allied and Commonwealth countries, were reinforcing solemn British warnings to Smith that any grab at independence would be treated as an act of rebellion.

Thus a solid front of leading powers, representing just about all the continents, built up against Smith and the 220,000 white Rhodesians he hopes to lead to statehood. Some 4,000,000 colored Rhodesians are almost without political power.

TOLD OF DIFFICULTIES

As an example of the sort of difficulties the white Rhodesians would encounter after a unilateral declaration of independence, Britain advised Smith within the last two days that Rhodesian passports would have no validity in countries which decline to recognize the statehood he would claim.

If the 49-year-old Rhodesian leader was impressed by this display of opposition he gave no sign of it when he faced Wilson.
